

Chapter 180

William gently tapped on the gift box and as he walked outside the office.

As soon as he left, Linda immediately questioned Laura, "Sister Koo, why are you with him? You have an important reputation to protect! Even if you want to find a man, you don't have to find such a lowly person!"

Laura's face suddenly turned cold as she exclaimed, "Linda! Let me warn you one more time. Don't talk about things you shouldn't be talking about and don't ask about things you shouldn't be asking! It's not what you think that has happened."

Linda's face froze and she immediately cowered to the side.

However, she was extremely furious inside!

That b*stard had managed to make Laura on his side!

Hmph! He did not even know his own place!

Laura had given him the lucky charm necklace on which she had spent so much money without even batting an eye!

She must've given it to him to keep his mouth shut!

D*mn it!

At this moment, Martin was in his office.

A few minutes after Martin had left the director's office, he mustered up his courage and called Frank.

The call was instantly connected.

Martin unconsciously bent down as he greeted, smiling, "Greetings, Director Chien. I'm Martin. Darren told me that you had accepted our negotiation on the movie last night, is this true?"

Frank replied indifferently, "Yes, it will go in accordance with the terms you mentioned earlier. You will have the authority to select one main actor and you will receive one-third of the sponsorship quota. Is there any problem?"

Martin immediately replied, "There's no problem at all, none at all! Director Chien, you are indeed a generous man. I truly admire you."

"Is there anything else?" Frank asked with a cold voice.

"Well, there is something that I'd like to discuss with you. I'd like to collaborate in a private business with you. How does that sound to you?"

Martin suddenly lowered his voice.

"What kind of business?" Frank frowned on the other side of the phone.

"I'm afraid you're unaware of the current situation.

We have a new director who is quite a useless one. Therefore, I'd like to run a business with you. I won't release the news of our agreement for the time being as our director will personally negotiate with you in the next few days. Is it possible for you to turn him down or don't meet him at all?" Martin whispered.

"Oh? Why? Why should I do this?" questioned Frank. After all, he too was an old sly fox in the industry. He immediately knew that there had to be something fishy going on.

Martin smiled as he responded, "You already know that we have a bonus if we successfully secure a negotiation. Therefore, I'd like to take credit for this and privately offer you the bonus, which will be worth three million yuan as a gift."

At that moment, Frank muttered to himself.

What Martin said was the unspoken rule in this field of work.

This was equivalent to a discount.

However, Frank's mind flashed across the picture of William, the Divine Doctor Lu.

Since William was working as a security guard in Lunanica Media, could there be anything wrong with the company?

Frank thought about it for two minutes and finally said, "Five million yuan."

He agreed to the negotiation all for the sake of William.

It was up to Lunanica Media to settle with how things should work within themselves. William was only a security guard; there shouldn't be any benefit or harm to William.

On the other hand, he was very happy that his company had managed to save a huge sum of money.

However, Martin's heart ached at the idea of giving up five million yuan.

If this business was entirely Martin's achievement, the bonus he received would at most be seven million yuan.

However, five million yuan was being lost all in one go...

He thought for a minute and finally gritted his teeth in response. "It's a deal! If our director visits you in these two days, you must refrain from seeing him."

"Of course, I understand how it feels to be working under others. If we sign the contract, we'll be partners and we can earn more money together." Frank cackled at the idea.

Martin's face turned grim as soon as he hung up the phone.

The reason he made this offer wasn't just the bonus.

Martin wanted to use this matter to make things difficult for the arrogant William who did not know his place!

He wanted to avenge himself against William's previous humiliation of him!

At the same time, he wanted to give William a warning. He wanted William to thoroughly understand the true mastermind and talent behind this company's success.

"I, Martin, will effortlessly deliver what you can never do," he chuckled to himself.

Martin scanned through all the plans in his mind and proceeded to the director's office as soon as he made sure that everything was completely foolproof.

This time, William was in the office.

Martin pretended to be angry as soon as he walked into the office, reprimanding, "Director Lu, Director Chien from Henderson Media is inhumane! He must be thinking that he could control us!"

William took a glance at Martin and asked, "What happened?"

At that moment, Martin immediately regurgitated the speech that he had previously prepared, "We had originally negotiated with them that we would each invest fifty million yuan into the movie. We would also have the authority to choose one of the leading actors as well as to obtain one-third of the sponsorship quota."

William nodded; he knew about this.

"But that b*stard Director Chien called me earlier and said that we would have to add another ten million yuan into the movie, then only they would agree to our condition. Otherwise, we will not be able to select one of the leading actors. Don't you think they are being overboard?!" Martin was so agitated that he even hit the table.

However, Martin hadn't noticed that the corner of William's mouth was slightly curved.

There was a hint of a mockery in his smile.

William was present when Frank made a promise with Darren the previous night.

William was convinced that Frank dared not put on an act in front of him.

There could only be one answer.

Martin never knew that William was there at the scene the previous night. Neither would he know the relationship between William and Frank. Therefore, William decided to use this matter to fool Martin.

"Oh? That's really too much. Then what do you think we should do about this matter?" William asked.

Martin immediately said, "I can't do anything about it. Director Lu, I think you'll have to personally talk to Frank."

"Okay, you can set up a time for me," William ordered.

Martin was stunned as he never expected William to easily buy his saying.

"Well, Director Lu, I guess we're on the same side after all. However, please be aware of Director Chien's awful temper. If he were to speak down to you at any given time, you must definitely endure it," Martin warned William.

"I understand. Thank you for your reminder," William said.

Martin left the office with an embarrassed look.

As soon as he turned around, he grinned, mocking William inwardly.

Something interesting was about to happen.

William assigned Janet a task to handle the sponsorship project with the Bai family. He lingered around the office before leaving with Laura's gift.

As soon as he stepped out of the company, a loud roar was heard from behind him. "Stop right there!" someone shouted from behind.

William turned around and realized that it was Darren.

Darren initially wanted to reprimand William as he left his position without permission. But, all of a sudden, his eyes lit up as he stared at the gift bag in William's hand. "What are you holding in your hand? Did you steal this while you left your position without permission!" Darren questioned, his blood began to boil.

VAMP20 WORKS

Chapter 181

When William saw Darren, he lightly smiled. "It's you."

Darren felt a burst of disgust for no apparent reason when he saw William's smile!

He was nauseated by the presence of him!

Darren was an ostentatious person, often posing to be elegant and calm as though nothing could possibly affect him.

He was truly annoyed whenever he saw William being indifferent to his surroundings.

William was obviously just a small, insignificant vermin; how dared he be so pretentious!

What an ignorant brat!

"What's in your hand? Where did you get it from?!"
Darren questioned William.

William shook the gift bag in his hand and said, "Oh, I don't know what's in it, but it's not anything good. I was just about to throw it away."

All of a sudden, Darren snickered, convinced that he had caught William red-handed. "You don't know what's inside, huh? Are you sure you didn't steal it?! I just went upstairs and found that you were not on duty. Tell me, where have you been to?"

William remained silent. He bothered not to tell Darren that he had visited Laura's office and that the gift was from Laura.

Seeing William's silence, Darren was much more certain that he must have gotten it right.

As if he had found a secret, he immediately took out his phone. "I'm going to give the Bai family a call and tell them about your crime. I can't believe that you'd steal things on the first day of work!"

He dialed Rebecca's number and turned on the speaker mode as he prepared to use the Bais to give William a hard slap in the face.

He wanted to utilize this opportunity to make Felicity see just how lousy her man was.

The phone was soon connected. There was a huge ruckus on the other end of the phone as if something big had happened.

Rebecca's voice was heard amidst the chaos. "Darren, I was just about to call you, but I didn't expect you to call."

Darren was confused. "What's wrong?"

Rebecca immediately responded, "It's about the sponsorship for your movie."

He could hear his head buzz as soon as he heard about this matter.

The previous day, he had confidently promised the Bai family that he would handle this matter and give them a satisfactory answer.

However, his proposition was immediately rejected by Martin early the next day.

He was too embarrassed at this moment that he could not bear to meet the Bai family.

Darren couldn't dodge this topic now that it was brought by the Bai family. He braced himself and answered, "I'm sorry, Auntie. I'm afraid that I have not found a way yet—"

"Thank you, Darren! We always knew that you are the most capable one! You've managed to give the sponsorship right to the Bai family! We're now gathering to discuss how to thank you for all you had done! You're truly the Bai family's lucky star!" Rebecca interrupted, ignoring what Darren had said.

Darren was completely stunned.

The Bai family had obtained the sponsorship right?

"How is this possible?" he thought to himself.

Martin had previously mentioned that this matter had yet to come to a conclusion and that no one could take it yet.

How did the Bai family get the right for sponsorship?

"Auntie, what the hell is going on?" Darren asked in a conscious voice.

However, Rebecca giggled on the other end of the phone and responded "Hahaha, Darren, you've always been too modest and humble. It's okay. Why are you hiding it from us? A person who claimed to be from your company's office recently called and told us about the sponsorship right. We didn't believe it at first, but after checking that phone number, it was really from your company!"

Darren was even more confused.

"What's going on?" he wondered.

"Thank you! The Bai family will be the host tonight and treat you to a good meal! We're truly grateful for your contribution! By the way, Felicity will show up tonight too. You should prepare yourself for what I had just told you last night," Rebecca whispered.

She obviously didn't know that William was beside Darren.

Darren was filled with excitement as soon as he heard Felicity's name.

He replied without hesitation, "Alright, I'll let you do all the necessary."

"Darren, how did you do it? As far as I know, no one in the entire city had the sponsorship right. We are the first to have it," Rebecca told Darren, obviously curious.

Darren's heart froze as he steeled himself to answer, "I've told you that I'm very familiar with Mr.

Zhang, haven't I? It's just a matter of words."

Darren was extremely pleased with this news.

It was probably Martin who felt guilty since he failed to bring him to meet the director.

Therefore, Martin gave the sponsorship right to the Bai family in advance as a form of compensation.

Darren failed to notice William's sneer as he was overjoyed with the great news.

If only he would recall it carefully again, he would probably realize that he didn't even mention the Bai family when he requested Martin for the sponsorship right.

All he was thinking at this moment was meeting his love in the coming evening.

He chuckled with joy as he thought about Felicity.

It seemed that the Bai family had allowed him to get close with Felicity. He only had to play a few tricks to make it work.

Wasn't it perfect? He finally had the chance to be with her!

His body heated up with excitement as he pondered about this matter.

Rebecca hung up the phone as she hurriedly prepared for the feast this evening.

Darren wanted to burst out laughing before he suddenly realized that William was right before him.

He immediately patted his head and thought to himself, "F*ck! I can't believe I forgot to complain about him to the Bai family!"

"Well, it's not a big deal. We'll eventually meet tonight, right? It'll be much better if we talk about it face to face," he muttered silently.

He viciously said to William, "You're lucky that I'm in a good mood today so I'll spare your life. You've just heard the phone call, haven't you? If you're clever enough, you'd better stay at home tonight and not go elsewhere! Otherwise, you'll not be able to stay in the Bai family! I may also make your life in our company difficult!"

As he spoke, he snatched the gift away from William and added, "I'll be confiscating this thing. If you don't want your crimes to be exposed, I suggest you be quiet about it!"

As soon as he finished his line, he whistled and happily left the company.

Of course, he would never return the gift to the company, let alone find its actual owner.

It belonged to him now that it was with him.

As soon as William returned home, William noticed that Felicity was already known about the sponsorship right. She forced a smile and spoke to William, "William, I really didn't expect that Darren was able to help us in getting the sponsorship right."

Felicity was unhappy despite the fact that the Bai family had successfully obtained the sponsorship right.

He knew the reason behind Felicity's unhappiness.

"You're going to treat Darren to dinner tonight right?" William asked.

Felicity was dumbfounded and didn't dare to look into William's eyes. She replied softly, "Well, although he is eccentric and unreasonable, he actually did a favor for the Bai family. Therefore, as the head of the Bai family, I have no choice but to show up."

William nodded, turned around, and walked into the room. "Okay, enjoy your meal."

Felicity felt an inexplicable pain arise in her heart. She couldn't help but ask William, "Although they won't allow you to go, I still hope that you can go with me."

"It's alright, I have other arrangements," William said as he walked into the room and opened the window.

It was going to be a bellicose evening.

It was time for a counterattack.

A bloodbath was about to come...