

Chapter 1302

She pushed him with all her strength, rejecting him.

However, since ancient times, there was a natural-born disparity between men and women in terms of physical strength.

Moreover, her rejection undoubtedly served to encourage him. Later on, she stopped pushing him away. She rested her hands on his chest helplessly. "Sebastian, I'm afraid..."

He laughed coldly. "Where did you get the courage when I cut my tie just now?" With that, before she could say anything, he sealed her lips.

Two hours later, his secretary knocked on the door and sent them a set of new women's clothes, complete with a full set of underwear. He was very familiar with his wife's measurements.

He put them on for her personally but threw away her pair of high heels. "High heels are not suitable for you today."

She rested her hands on his shoulders and said gruffly, "How should I walk out of the door? When I came in, I wasn't wearing this set of clothes, but now I'm walking out in a different set of clothes. I feel so embarrassed!"

"So the president has a few sets of his wife's clothes in his office. Who can say anything? What's wrong with the president's wife changing into more than ten sets of clothes every day? Why do you feel so guilty?" Sebastian asked his wife.

Then he raised his finger and poked her forehead. "Look at how timid you are! I suspect that you were not the one who cut my tie three hours ago!"

Sabrina laughed. She put on her clothes. The end of the workday was Sabrina laughed. put on her clothes. The end of the workday was already here.

At this moment, Sebastian answered a call from Kingston. "Master Sebastian, I've already sent the Old Master back home safely."

"Alright," Sebastian answered.

Kingston: "Uhm..."

"Anything else?" Sebastian asked again.

Kingston continued, "I heard that, it seems like Old Master Ford and Lori Gibson... No, it should be Jennie Gibson; it seems like they know each other."

Sebastian; "..."

"It seems like..." Kingston sounded like he was not very confident in the piece of news that she heard. "I'm not too sure, but it seems like the Old Master partly wants to organize this family banquet because of Lori not too sure, but it seems like the Old Master partly wants to organize this family banquet because of Lori Gibson's mother."

Kingston told Sebastian everything that he knew. He listened in on the old man's telephone conversation as he was driving.

That old man! He was still as womanizing as he was back in his younger days. And a man like that dared to run to the company to admonish his daughter-in-law. Kingston almost laughed at the absurdity of it all, but at the same time, he was furious too.

Not to mention, the old man was indeed a handsome old man. He was already in his sixties, and yet he was neither stooped nor hunched-back, and he managed his body very well.

People who did not know would think he was forty-seven or forty-eight years old. In addition, when he was young, he was old, powerful, and eight years old. In addition, when he was young, he was old, powerful, and was used to wealth and prestige. The old man had always had the aura of an elite when he spoke, and this aura was very attractive to women.

On the way there, Kingston feigned deafness and eavesdropped on the old man's conversation. Throughout their journey, he obtained this information.

"Alright," Sebastian said indifferently.

After he ended the call, Sabrina asked, "What did Kingston say?"

"It's fine," he answered. At that moment, he was thinking about ordering his men to investigate Lori and her mother to find out more about their background.

This mother-daughter duo was jumping around like a pair of buffoons, causing trouble for all of them. What were they actually up to?

Sebastian had never shown extra mercy for women compared to men. He would not show mercy to anyone who incited him.

Hearing him speak so casually, Sabrina did not pay much attention to it either. She said to Sebastian, "Dear, are there any signs of you on my neck?"

"Yeah," he answered.

"Then what can he do! I need to go pick Aino up from kindergarten now; the other mothers at the kindergarten will make fun of me, okay!" she whined.

Sebastian raised his eyebrow and smiled. "What if Lori Gibson saw you?"

"Then... She'll be so angry that she'll pop a few blood vessels!" Sabrina answered.