Chapter 28 A Thunderstorm Night

Nowadays, college students could do anything for money. There were often girls from art schools who are kept by others.

Hearing this, Krista immediately waved her hand and said, "No! Mr. Irwin just admired Mr. Hamm very much, so he decided to ask Mr. Hamm to design clothes for him."

"That makes sense. Kingston looks so cold and aloof. Strangers are not allowed to approach him. Furthermore, if Kingston were to find a woman, what kind of woman would he not have?"

"By the way, have you heard the gossip lately? Kingston has fallen in love with a beauty."

"Krista, tell us. Is Kingston handsome? Is he even more handsome than he is on TV?"

They became excited and forgot the former topic. They began to discuss Kingston.

Keely was so angry. She had to think of a way to drive Krista away.

Between Krista and her, only one could stay in the studio.

Krista went back to her rental room at night and lay happily on the bed. The money was like a lifesaving straw for her. She could live a little easier for the rest of the year.

If she could save some money, she could be able to hold out until the baby was born.

However, she still needed to work hard. Was she going to give birth to a baby? It was more like a fantastic beast, who took money as its food. It was unknown how much it would actually need. –

She wanted to give her baby the best she could.

She was imagining the happy life in the future when the phone rang. It was the servant from the villa.

The servant saw Krista's stuff when cleaning up the room. It was a pocket watch, within which there were photos of her mother and grandfather. Her mother was still holding her in the arms.

Krista had always kept the watch close to her. She thought that she had brought it with her when she moved out of the villa, but actually it was left there.

"Miss Compton, please come back and get it when you have time. I don't have any vacation these days."

She knew how difficult it was for servants to stay in the villa twenty-four hours a day, unless they had a vacation.

"When will Kingston be out? I'll go get it." –

"He will not be here tomorrow evening. There seems to be a social dinner."

Krista would go back to get it at eight o'clock tomorrow evening.

The next night, she returned to the villa.

The servant came out to give her the pocket watch. Looking at her, the servant almost cried.

"Why are you crying?"

"Miss Compton, we miss you." Others also came out. Krista was familiar with them, for they had once stayed together for almost a year. Krista didn't want to cry, but she didn't expect that so many people would come out and her eyes were moist.

wei

As long as she treated others sincerely, others would treat her the same way.

"Alright, alright. You guys get back to work. When he comes back, nothing can be wrong."

In the past, when she was here alone, she was very casual and there were not many rules for everything.

"Miss Compton, are you really not coming back? I don't think she's better than you."

"That's right, Miss Compton. Will you remarry Mr. Irwin? It's his fortune that he finally finds you."

"Alright, alright. Don't say that. I have to go. Thank you."

She clutched her pocket watch, looked at them for a while, and then left.

She didn't dare to turn around, for that she was afraid that she would cry.

She kept walking forward. Until the villa completely disappeared from her sight, she then wiped away the tears at the corner of her eyes.

There were no taxis or buses on this part of the road. It would take at least fifteen minutes to get to the bus stop.

At this moment, a thunderclap in the sky made her tremble violently.

The weather was going to change.

She hated this kind of thunderstorm night. In the past, Zaniyah had asked her to kneel in the courtyard. That night, lightning flashed and thunder rumbled, leaving a terrifying memory to young Krista.

She hurriedly quickened her pace, but soon the rain began to pour and she was soaked in it.

Chapter 29 Stay at the Villa for the Night

She must hurry to the bus stop.

There was a Y-turn ahead. Krista had just walked over when a car suddenly appeared. She was so frightened that she lost all her strengths and fell to the ground.

The car was stopped, and Krista heard the tires squeal.

Quincy was shaken. He broke into a sweat. Normally, no one would be around this area, so he only turned on the headlights and did not horn when making the turn.

He didn't expect that a figure would rush out of the rain.

Fortunately, he stopped in time and didn't hit it.

"Sir, I'll go take a look."

Quincy got out of the car with an umbrella and saw Krista, who was in a mess.

"Ms. Compton? Why are you here?"

Krista was very embarrassed. She hurriedly got up. Involuntarily, she shivered with cold.

Quincy hurriedly carried the umbrella for her.

"I ... left something in the villa. Mr. Fischer ... can you lend me an umbrella? I want to go back there."

Krista was soaked with rain, and she couldn't stop trembling. She hugged herself tightly.

The rain was so heavy. It was too dangerous for a little girl like Krista to walk back to the villa alone.

Quincy looked at Kingston, who was in the car. =

"Get in the car. Let's go back together. You'll catch a cold in the rain." "But I..."

"Ms. Compton, get in the car. You can't afford to catch a cold."

Almost as soon as Quincy finished speaking, Krista sneezed.

Quincy was right. She must not catch a cold. She must think of her unborn baby.

Krista could not refuse but only get in the car. She didn't sit in the back, instead, she chose to sit in the passenger seat. She was deliberately avoiding Kingston.

Seeing her open the passenger door, Kingston narrowed his eyes slightly.

Why didn't she sit in the back? Was it because that she didn't want to sit together with him?

Quincy also froze for a moment. He subconsciously looked at Kingston and noticed the latter's face had clouded over. Quincy's heart instantly tensed up.

"Why don't you sit in the back? It's more comfortable."

"No. I'll stay here. Mr. Irwin doesn't like to be disturbed."

Mr. Irwin?

Kingston found the name especially annoying.

Krista had been addressing him as "Mr. Irwin" ever since they divorced. She was always polite to him, as if their one-year marriage had never existed.

Kingston felt a little strange. If Krista clung to him, and kept reminding him that she was his ex-wife, he would feel irritated.

But now, Krista had been doing nothing but avoiding him, as if he was some kind of beast. She didn't even bother looking at him, even for just a moment.

Kingston didn't feel good about it.

He even thought that this might be Krista's trick to win his heart.

However, if Krista really wanted to do such a thing, she would have done it long ago when she was still Mrs. Irwin.

Now, she merely didn't want to have anything to do with him.

Kingston knew it.

That was why he felt uncomfortable.

Very uncomfortable!

After getting in the car, Quincy gave Krista a clean blanket, and then turned up the heat.

Krista hurriedly dried her body with the blanket while sneezed several times..

vera

The car radio was on. It was autumn, and a typhoon had hit the country. Originally, it was not supposed to affect City D, but somehow it did. That explained the rainstorm at night.

There was a strong wind outside, and Quincy drove the car very slowly. Quincy knew that he couldn't go home but stay at the villa tonight, let alone Krista.

He stopped the car in the courtyard, and Kingston stepped out of the car.

Before Kingston entered the house, a petite woman rushed into his arms.

"Kingston, I'm so scared."

Kingston's fingers stiffened for a moment. Even though Sandra had hugged him so many times, he still wasn't used to it.

He patted Sandra's back stiffly and said, "Don't worry, I'm back."

Only then did Sandra notice that there was someone else. Her pupils subconsciously dilated when she saw Krista.

Chapter 30 Lodging

She didn't like Krista. After all, Krista was Kingston's ex-wife, and Kingston's grandmother liked her very much, Kingston's mother also favored her.

Kingston wanted to take Sandra home, but his mother scolded him for it. She didn't even think that Sandra was pregnant with Kingston's baby.

"Ms. Compton."

Sandra took the initiative to say hello.

"I left something here. It is raining, so I can't go back. Mr. Irwin was being kind to me, so he brought me back."

Krista hurriedly explained.

"I see. Why didn't you tell me in advance so that I can help you? Come in! Take a hot bath and change your clothes. I'll go prepare ginger soup."

"Leave it to the servants."

"You should drink it too. I'll do it myself. I don't like others to make the soup for you."

Sandra chuckled and walked into the room.

"Aren't you afraid of thunder?"

"Since you're back, I'm not afraid anymore."

Krista watched as the two of them talked to each other. She was actually jealous.

She went back to the room to take a bath, and the servant brought over Sandra's unworn clean clothes to her. Sandra had specially prepared the clothes. Krista thought that Sandra was rather considerate.

When Krista had cleaned up herself, someone knocked on the door.

"It's me. I brought you ginger soup."

Krista quickly opened the door.

"Sorry to trouble you."

"It's nothing. People always think that Kingston is a cold and indifferent man. Actually, I know that he values his own feelings very much. He married you to make life easier for his mother, right?"

Krista understood Sandra's hidden meaning.

Sandra was reminding her that back then, Kingston was forced to marry her. He had no feelings for her.

On the contrary, he liked Sandra for the bottom of his heart.

Krista knew that Sandra had come to be hard on her.

She could understand. She shouldn't be here in the villa anymore now that she and Kingston had divorced.

"Don't worry, Ms. Hardin. I will leave when the weather is better," Krista said.

"Ms. Compton, we are all women. You should now that Kingston is the one who is giving me a sense of security. I am very uneasy to come to this unfamiliar place with him. I know that he has feelings for me and will do what he promised me. You are his ex-wife, Ms. Compton. Please don't come here anymore in the future. It's all in the past.

"If you have any difficulties, you can look for me. I won't ignore you. I'm also sentimental. People won't misunderstand anything if you come to me. By doing so, I can also feel at ease. This is a win win solution for everything. What do you say?"

Krista looked at the woman in front of her seriously,

Sandra was about her age. She looked weak and pale.

However, there was something powerful and shrewd in her eyes.

'She is very smart'. This was Krista's first impression.

All Sandra's words made sense. Krista could not find any word to refute her.

However, why did Sandra keep saying these things to her? She knew that Kingston valued his feelings for Sandra and had promised to marry Sandra. Sandra was not Kingston's wife yet only because of Kingston's mother and his grandmother's objections.

Krista believed that Kingston would marry Sandra eventually. He would not make Sandra uncomfortable.

Since this was a sure thing, there was no need for Sandra to emphasize it to Krista again and again.

The more confident Sandra looked, the more Krista felt that Sandra was actually afraid of her.

Krista was also pregnant, so she didn't want to make things difficult for Sandra.

Kingston wouldn't know that Krista was pregnant. Krista hoped that Sandra's child could have a complete family.

Krista didn't say anything. She only nodded.

"Alright, I'll pay attention in the future."

"Thank you, Ms. Compton."

Sandra smiled gently. All the shrewdness disappeared from her face.

Chapter 31 Maybe He's Not Capable

After she left, she went to Kingston's study. ===

She had the authority to enter, but she couldn't stay for too long. It was not good for her to know too many trade secrets.

"Why are you here?"

"I miss you."

She immersed herself into his embrace like a lost and injured little deer with her small hands circled around him forcefully, wanting to hug him tightly, as if she was afraid that he would run away.

"Aren't you afraid of hurting our baby?"

"He asked me to hug you." She muttered to him. Her eyes turned red and her eyelashes were wet when she raised her head.

When Kingston saw that, he wiped her eyes immediately, "What's wrong?"

"I'm afraid... After all, you and Ms. Compton have been married for a year." She admitted her worries openly. No one could stand up to her coquettish act and pitiful expression. Moreover, Kingston had never been with a woman before and knew nothing about women's tricks, so she had never failed on this.

Kingston admired her honest.

"Don't worry. Nothing is gonna happen between us."

"But I'm still worried. She's the one that your mother and your grandmother approve of. I'm just some girl coming out of nowhere. They don't recognize me. I can understand that, and I'm willing to wait. Sooner or later, they'll be moved by my sincerity. But.. I'm worried all the time about your relationship with her."

"Kingston, I want you to keep a certain distance from any woman for me, including Krista, okay?"

"Alright."

Kingston replied without hesitation. The most basic thing between lovers was loyalty.

He was never a philanderer.

He would complete anything that he had promised her.

"Kingston..."

Her fingers came to his buttons and she began to unbutton them.

She couldn't help twisting her body, but before she could unbutton the first one, Kingston grabbed her hand and said, "I still have to work."

"Kingston..." she said coquettishly.

"Although you have been pregnant for three months, you had taken psychotropic drugs before and the fetus is unstable, so we can't do this. This is what the doctor said. Go back and rest first. I don't know how long it will take the work here."

Sandra felt a little helpless. She had come to the Irwin's for such a long time, but she didn't have any sexual encounter with him, only hugs at most

He had never kissed her or held her hand in earnest.

Even his embrace before was stiff and awkward. She had been in his embrace for a minute, but his arms still hadn't wrapped around her body.

She wondered if Kingston had any needs in sex.

Her sister Vivian said that night was also because of the drug.

Maybe he was not potent?

Maybe only the drugs could help him? He was actually an impotent guy?

The more she thought about it, the more she felt that it was possible. After all, she wasn't him, and she didn't know about Kingston's body.

It seemed that if she wanted to have sex with Kingston, she had to find an opportunity to deal with the baby in her belly.

However, how should she deal with it?

When she came out, she saw the guest bedroom.

Krista slept inside.

She could be a good choice.

When Sandra thought of this, she couldn't help curving her lips. A smug smile flashed across her shrewd eyes.

The thunder was very loud outside. When the lightning appeared, the room was illuminated and became especially frightening.

It was difficult for Krista to fall asleep at night like this. In the past, she would need a servant to accompany her.

But now, she was no longer Mrs. Irwin.

She didn't ask anyone to accompany her. There were some difficulties that she had to overcome by herself, she couldn't rely on others for all her life.

Before coming to the Irwin's, she also curled up into a tight to such a night.

She huddled herself up, and the scene of the past appeared in her mind.

Chapter 32 I'll Accompany You for a While

“Stupid, did you know that I brought this cup from abroad? Get out and kneel, you can’t come back until I calm down.”

Her fingers were cut by fragments and the blood kept flowing. Zaniyah didn’t even permit her to bind up her wound and chased her, out.

At that time, her mother was ill in hospital. (This novel will be daily updtaed at)Zaniyah entered the family with her daughter, occupied her mother’s position and kept ordering about her.

That night, Krista hurt her knee because of that punishment.

She had a high fever for several days and almost died.

All the doctors felt that the God was not willing to take away her life, so she could still survive after such a high fever.

Ever since then, she had been afraid of such nights.

Being punished to kneel was already tragic enough, and the weather was not helping. It rained heavily with lightning and thunder.

From then on, she began to have this psychological shadow.

The time passed very slowly, it was so hard to endure.

She had a feeling that every minute was like a year. –

Suddenly, a clap of thunder crashed in the sky and a white light flashed. The night was illuminated like day. She suddenly saw a phantom on the windowsill and screamed out in fear. Bu

“Ghost...”

She curled up under the blanket and trembled.

At this moment, Kingston came out of the study and saw a servant pacing in front of the guest bedroom.

“What are you doing?”

ICCO

“Sir... Mrs... Miss Compton is very afraid of the thunderstorm night like this.(This novel will be daily updtaed at) I used to accompany her when she was here, but now she won’t let me, she said that now she is an outsider, it’s inappropriate for her to ask me to do this anymore. I just heard her scream and I was a little worried about her. But the door is locked, so I can't go in."

"Why is she afraid of such a night?"

"I heard Miss Compton say that when she was a child, she was punished to kneel by her stepmother.

That night, it rained heavily. She knelt all night. The next day, she had a high fever, which lasted for several days. She almost died because of this."

Hearing this, Kingston's heart tightened.

He couldn't imagine what it would be like for Krista to kneel on a rainy night with such a delicate body.

"Go to find the spare key." He instructed immediately.

The servant found the key hurriedly. Kingston opened the door and rushed in. He saw her huddle up under the blanket and her body was trembling.

"Krista..."

He called her name and lifted the blanket. He found her face pale, her forehead covered in cold sweat, and her eyes were tightly shut.

It was as if she had got dazed and hadn't recovered yet.

"Krista."

He called her again before she came back to her senses.

Suddenly, a thunder crashed in the sky.

"Ah..."

She was so scared that she went straight into Kingston's embrace, and her arms wrapped around his neck tightly.

Kingston was stunned, and she did not find it at all.

He calmed down and felt her tiny body trembling. She was truly scared.

He placed his big hand lightly on her back and stroked her gently, "Don't be afraid, it's just thunder."

His voice seemed to have magic power, when she heard it, her heart began to tremble.

She came to her senses and realized what had happened.

She hid in Kingston's arms.

She hurriedly moved back and looked at him nervously, "I'm sorry, I didn't mean to..."

"Get me a glass of milk." (This novel will be daily updated at)He instructed.

The servant quickly brought him the hot milk and closed the door on her way out.

"Drink the milk and take a good rest."

"I can't sleep."

"I'll accompany you for a while until you fall asleep."

He said indifferently as he sat down beside the bed. The two of them did not say anything, nor did they have any eye contact.

He was reading the documents on his phone, but... for some reason, she seemed to feel a little more at ease when he stayed here.

Safe distance, safe relationship.

If only it hadn't been for that night.

However, it didn't seem to be bad either.
