Chapter 1939

The phone didn't get through.

"You try to call your boss?" Avery's bodyguard said.

Elliot's bodyguard also wanted to visit the corpse pit, so he called Elliot.

"I can't get through either! Did the two of them make an appointment to shut down together?"

"It's possible. Why don't we go to the corpse pit now! Come back after reading it, so that it won't be too long." The bodyguards are not very afraid of Avery, so they are more casual.

After thinking for a few seconds, Elliot's bodyguard said, "I'll send a message to my boss first."

Avery's's bodyguard: "Then I'll send a message to my boss as well."

After the two bodyguards sent messages to their respective bosses, they left the hotel and drove to the suburbs. .

The weather is rather cloudy today, and it seems to rain at any time.

The scene was gray, with a hint of horror.

Two bodyguards, wearing masks, walked to the edge of the cordon.

"Idle people, please don't get close!" A staff member came over and reminded them.

Avery's bodyguard wanted to approach the corpse pit too much, so he said, "We are Elliot's bodyguards. We came here to see the day before yesterday afternoon."

Elliot's bodyguard looked at Avery's bodyguard in disbelief, and his eyes were saying: You are too shameless!

Avery's bodyguard whispered in his ear: "We finally drove over for more than an hour. It's a pity not to come and see."

The staff did not hear their whispers, but recognized them both.

Elliot and Avery came over the day before yesterday afternoon, and these two tall bodyguards also came.

“Why didn’t Mr. Foster and Miss Tate come?” The staff asked them to enter the cordon.

“They are tired today, so let’s come over and have a look.” Avery bodyguard said in a serious manner.

“Oh, let’s see! The work here is actually quite boring, that is, to bring up the bones below. There is nothing else to do except look at the bones.” The staff chatted with the two of them.

“Yeah, but it’s quite shocking to see so many corpses at once.” Avery’s bodyguard said.

“It’s the first time I’ve seen such a scene in the past few years... It’s no wonder that Miss Tate couldn’t stand it the day before yesterday. Is she sick?” The staff said, “I remembered that Miss Tate said she wanted to help.”

“Did they not come yesterday?” Elliot’s bodyguard couldn’t help but ask.

The staff was stunned for a moment: “Didn’t come! Don’t you know their itinerary?”

“They left early yesterday and didn’t let us follow...” The bodyguard explained embarrassingly, “I knew they definitely didn’t come here. They will definitely take us when they come so far away.”

“Then they may have gone to the hospital yesterday! The workload of testing is still quite large. Like our side, it is basically manual work, but it is not really necessary. Miss Tate is here to help.” The staff looked at the two of them, “Did you come here today just to have a look?”

The two bodyguards were stunned.

“To be honest, we are a bit short of manpower here.” The staff sighed, “You see that the weather is not very good today, it may rain at any time. But there are so many corpses on the ground here, and they have to be transported to the car in front. ...that car can’t be driven ... our staff are exhausted a few batches ...”

The two bodyguards looked at each other and said, “Then let’s help. “

“Thank you, thank you! Thank you so much! I’ll get you protective suits!”

In this way, the two bodyguards went from running around to watch the excitement to becoming free porters.

The two of them hummed and spent a whole day in the corpse pit.

Returning to the hotel in the evening, the two walked to the lobby and sat down on the sofa in the lobby tacitly.

Chapter 1940

"My boss still hasn't found me." Avery's guard glanced at his mobile phone, and the message he sent to Avery in the morning has not yet received a reply.

Before that, he sent Avery a message, and Avery would reply.

"My boss didn't look for me either." Elliot's bodyguard glanced at his phone, feeling a little desperate, "It's all your fault! What corpse pit! I'm exhausted!"

"Will you blame me? Others are too busy, let's help What's the matter... Helping them is equivalent to helping our boss. My boss said the day before yesterday that he was going to help in the corpse pit!" Avery's guard was not so resentful in his heart, "Is my boss really sick?"

"Your boss is sick, why should my boss shut down? If your boss is sick, my boss will definitely send her to the hospital. It's impossible for two people to be locked in a room and completely lose contact with the outside world, right?" Elliot's bodyguard insisted, "The two are living in the two-person world in the room!"

Avery's security guard frowned: "My boss is here to find Haze, unless she knows that Haze is dead, and she won't be in the mood to be locked in the room with your boss to be nice to me."

"Hey, it's so annoying! I won't go to the corpse pit tomorrow! I'm going to you!" Elliot's bodyguard said irritably, "I really want to knock on my boss's door, no matter what they do, let us both know. We are like headless flies now."

"Go and knock the door." Avery's bodyguard said.

"You guy, I really despise you!" Elliot's bodyguard got up from the sofa and strode towards the elevator.

Avery's bodyguard: "If you dare to ring their doorbell, I'll call you brother!"

"I don't want your cowardly brother!" Elliot's bodyguard looked disgusted.

The two entered the elevator and pressed the floor where the presidential suite was located.

Not long after, they came to the door of the presidential suite.

There was still a 'Do Not Disturb' sign on it.

Elliot's bodyguard was stunned in an instant.

Avery's heart sank, stretched out his hand, and pressed the doorbell.

Elliot's bodyguard looked at him in shock: "F*ck, didn't you say you didn't dare?"

"When the door opens, I'll say you pressed it, okay?" Avery's bodyguard looked calm.

Elliot's bodyguard raised his foot and kicked his a$$.

As time passed by, the breathing of the two gradually became solemn, and the expressions on their faces gradually became tense.

After five minutes of waiting, they both looked at each other.

Avery's bodyguard: "What should I do? They won't open the door!"

"How do I know what to do? It's the first time I've come out with my boss, but I can't get in touch with my boss." Elliot's bodyguard looked distressed.

Avery's bodyguard: "Me too! My boss never turns off the phone as long as it has power."

"Didn't Layla call and ask in the morning? You call Layla now and ask Layla if her parents have called her back." Avery's bodyguard became wise in a hurry, "The two of them ignore us, it's impossible to ignore Layla!"

Elliot's bodyguard immediately turned on his mobile phone and dialed Layla.

"Uncle bodyguard, do you have anything to do with me?" Layla's voice came clear.

"Layla, did your parents call you today?"

Layla: "No! I'm waiting for them to call me!"

"Oh oh oh..." Elliot's bodyguard was instantly anxious, "I haven't been able to contact them since last night. There's a 'do not disturb' sign on the door of their room. I rang the doorbell just now, but they didn't open the door."

"Huh?!" Layla exclaimed, "What's the matter with them?! Why can't they come out of the room? Why can't they open the door?"

Layla couldn't understand Mom and Dad's behavior.
