Chapter 41

Chapter 41

Savanna really wanted to say that she was different from Brandon, who was a playboy. But she remembered that she was no longer in a position to say that. In the end, she held her words back.

“Yes.”

Her clear voice was like a sharp saw that made his heart ache a lot.

Brandon clenched his fists. His eyebrows twisted. Then he felt hot again. He rushed into the bathroom fast. When he came out again, he had a bath towel around his waist.

There was a gust of cold air. Drops of water fell from his strong chest and crossed his abs. It was so sexy that it could make women scream crazily.

He walked over barefoot and reached out to untie her hands. His skin felt so cold.

Obviously, he had just taken a cold shower.

“Get lost.”

The belt had just been untied, and he did not hesitate to drive her away.

Savanna did not want to talk to him either. She rubbed her slender wrist, turned around, and walked out of the door without looking back. She had just walked to the door when she heard a loud bang. Her body also shook violently. Almost, she was hit by the door that Brandon shut up.

Savanna was so angry that her face turned pale. She grabbed her bag and went to another private room to find the client, Selina Cook, who wanted to cancel the contract.

When Selina saw her,

Selina’s eyes were very cold. Savanna knew that no matter what she did, she would not be able to change anything. Savanna had to sign the termination agreement unconditionally and leave.

Savanna got into the car and buckled her seatbelt. As soon as the car drove out of the Night nightclub, a red Maybach appeared suddenly and crashed toward her car.

Savanna turned the steering wheel and heard the sound of a crash. The right side of the car was scratched by the wall.

She quickly turned off the car to check it.

Fortunately, she reacted quickly and turned the steering wheel. Otherwise, the glass on the right side of her car would have been broken.

As for the red luxury car, it only stopped, and no one came down. Savanna immediately became angry. She walked over and knocked on the car window. After a long time, the car window was slowly rolled down. The woman’s face that was revealed was somewhat familiar. Savanna suddenly remembered that it was the woman who had run away from Brandon’s room.

Apparently, the woman did this to take revenge on Savanna.

Savanna asked, "Insurance or cash?"

Savanna took a step back, and her face gradually became gloomy.

The woman finished smoking and put out the cigarette. Her lips curled into a mocking smile. When she got back into the car, she said, "My assistant will talk to you. Bye."

The woman wanted to leave. Savanna would not let her go and stood in front of the car.

The woman

honked several times. Savanna did not have the slightest intention of moving aside. The woman was furious. She shouted at Savanna, "Get out of the way, or I'll crush you."

Savanna did not speak. Her cold eyes stared straight at the woman. The woman was furious. She slapped the steering wheel and began to curse wildly, "Savanna, who do you think you are? You are just an abandoned woman that no one wants."

"Say it again."

Savanna lowered her eyes with the coldness hidden in them.

"You are just an abandoned woman that no one wants..."

"Bam."

Savanna slapped the woman fiercely without hesitation.

The woman had red fingerprints on her face, which was shocking.

"You hit me?"

The woman was dizzy from the slap. Her face was distorted in anger.

She angrily opened the car door and rushed down. As she reached out to grab

Savanna, Savanna

dodged away agilely.

The woman flew into a rage and scolded.

"Savanna, you shameless slut. Mr. Cassel doesn't want you anymore. But you still tried to seduce him. You are so cheap."

"Brandon doesn't want me, let alone you," Savanna responded sharply with a sneer.

"Savanna, why are you here?"

Savanna turned around and naturally saw Tracy behind her. Tracy's expression was not very natural, and her footsteps were as light as those of a ghost.

Savanna suddenly recalled that she ran out of the private room. After that, the woman appeared and entered the private room. It happened within two minutes. It couldn't be a coincidence.

There must be a scheme

Why would Tracy be in Brandon's room when he was in a state of unconsciousness?

"Your brother dragged me into the room for no reason. She..." Savanna raised her finger and pointed at the woman. "She escaped like a scared bird."

"No..."

The woman was so angry that her face turned red and she swore.

Savanna smiled faintly. She took out her phone from her pocket and dialed Brandon's number.

After hearing what Savanna said, Tracy hesitated and felt uneasy. "Savanna, I don't know what you are talking about. He dragged you in. What did it have to do with me?" Savanna said, "I saw you running out of the private room. You seemed to be in a panic. Then, this woman went in. I'm afraid it was not a coincidence!" Tracy was stunned, and her face immediately turned red. She stuttered, "You ... were wrong. I just came over. If you don't believe me, ask her." Tracy turned to the woman, but the woman shuddered and did not speak. "Tracy, if you like Brandon, just say it. There is no need to keep it a secret." Savanna was straightforward. "No..." Tracy was anxious. Savanna looked down at her phone. The call lasted 90 seconds according to the phone. Brandon must have heard their conversation. She hung up with her index finger. Savanna wanted to leave but was stopped by Tracy. "Savanna, you are shameless. It was you who seduced my brother. But you even said that I liked my brother. Didn't he give you enough money after you broke up? So, you..." Before Tracy could finish, her eyes swept across and saw Brandon. She paused, and her face turned white. Savanna followed Tracy's gaze and saw Brandon, who had already come out of the Night nightclub. He was tall and had long legs. His exquisite face was smooth and pale in his eyes. His collar was open, and the red marks on his skin could clearly be seen. AN It didn't make him look worse. Instead, it was more enchanting and ambiguous. When he tried to do something to Savanna, she fiercely scratched him as she struggled. Under Brandon's significant stare, Savanna's face turned red. Tracy did not expect Brandon to suddenly appear. So Tracy was shocked.

After being stunned for a while, Tracy reacted and hurriedly rushed up to hold Brandon's hand anxiously with grievance.

"Brandon, did you hear what Savanna said?"

Brandon pursed her lips coldly. He shifted his gaze from Savanna to Tracy's face. It was as sharp as a knife. Tracy flinched. She didn't know how much Brandon had heard about her conversation with Savanna. Tracy got her nerve up.

"Brandon, don't listen to Savanna. We grew up together. You know me..."

In addition, that woman worked for Tracy. If Brandon recognized Tracy, the woman would be the scapegoat.

The woman realized that something was wrong. Seeing Brandon's fierce gaze, she trembled in fear and said, "Ms. Cassel, I have something else to do. I gotta go."

Looking at the woman's back, Tracy wanted to stop her, but she didn't dare to shout.

Tracy could only stamp her foot, and her fierce eyes turned to Savanna.

"Savanna, I don't know that woman."

“Why did she call you Ms. Cassel?”

Savanna smiled.

“I just don’t know her.”

After all, that woman had left. Tracy would not admit it.

Savanna didn’t bother to argue with her. She didn’t even look at Brandon. Before she left, she said coldly, “I’ll drive the car to the 4S shop. I’ll tell Jim about the repair fees.”

After saying that, Savanna got into the car and started it. The car shot out like an arrow.

From the rearview mirror, Savanna could see that Tracy wanted to say something, but Brandon flung her hand away. Tracy chased after him and reached out to grab the corner of Brandon’s clothes. As a result, Brandon’s suit was torn open.

Savanna felt that she could hear the crisp sound of his clothes from afar.

Then, Brandon slapped Tracy hard. Tracy was startled. Her eyes were red as she rushed over and fought back

What a show,

Tracy actually dared to scheme against a man like Brandon, Tracy was lucky enough to be slapped in the face,

Savanna smiled.

Brandon must have been shocked and angry if he knew that Tracy, who he had always regarded as his own sister, liked him.

He actually hit Tracy, who was an apple of his eye.

Savanna returned to the Thompson’s home, and it was already sunset.

When Leo arrived, he was crestfallen and sullen. Savanna asked him, “How is it?”

Leo said, “This matter involves a lot of people. The truth a few years ago was exposed. I got Gordon in trouble.”

Leo was obviously upset.

The main problem was that Gordon might think that Leo did this.

There were some things that only Leo knew.

le W

“Can we bail him out?”

Savanna did not know what else to say.

Leo pursed his lips until they were pale, and he could not say a word.

S

Savanna thought for a moment and hesitated. “How about ... I talk to Brandon?”

Savanna could not think of any other way now.

Leo held her hand and shook his head. “We have no evidence that it was Mr. Cassel who did it.”

Without evidence, he naturally couldn’t wrongly accuse Brandon.

Anyway, Leo was still afraid of Brandon. He was cultivated by Brandon. He already felt guilty that he helped Savanna secretly.

Leo was a little regretful and felt that he was too complacent.

He had worked for Brandon for many years. He knew that Brandon could do anything.

But he still pushed his luck because he couldn’t bear to leave Savanna in trouble.

There was no turning back

“That’s true.”

Savanna also felt that it was inappropriate to go to Brandon now,

Seeing that Leo was in low spirits, Savanna felt unhappy too. She held Leo’s hand and said,

“Leo, I’m sorry for dragging you down.”

Leo looked at Savanna. He had complex feelings. He would do anything to help Savanna. However, he felt it was painful to put his friend in trouble.

In Gordon’s heart, he must be a terrible person!

Savanna said, “Let’s find the best lawyer and help Gordon out.”

vanna

Leo said, “The best lawyers are all in the Cassel Group. I ... am afraid that we can’t do anything about it.”

Leo was disheartened.

Leo got a call and said to Savanna, “The lawyer I called earlier is calling me.”

“Okay, go for it. If there is anything new, let me know.”

“Alright.”

Savanna sat on the sofa anxiously. She kept her eyes closed for a while and suddenly thought of Giselle. She got up, took the car key, and left.

Mary chased after her. “Ms. Thompson, dinner is almost ready. You can go after having dinner!”

“Go enjoy dinner. I’ll be back soon.”

Savanna replied as she got into the car. The car rushed out of the villa.

When Savanna came to the Cassel’s house, Giselle had just returned after playing cards. She must have lost money because she looked in a bad mood. However, when she saw Savanna, her eyes suddenly revealed a smile.

“Savanna.”

“Mrs. Cassel, I need your help.” Savanna didn’t want to waste any time, so she went straight to the point. “My friend did something wrong and was under arrest. Can you help me find a capable lawyer?”

Giselle raised her eyelids and said casually, “A lawyer...”

“Yes,” Savanna replied.

“Oh, Savanna. What a coincidence. We met a problem overseas. All the good lawyers were sent over,”

Brandon had sharp eyes and saw the license plate. He bought the car for her about half a year ago, and the license plate was chosen by her.

Brandon's deep eyes flashed with a hint of sadness.

He was right. She was indeed trying to help Gordon.

She even asked his mother for help.

She could do anything for a man who she had only known for less than a month.

Cain, Leo, and Gordon...

Brandon smiled bitterly and sorrowfully.

She liked all men, except for him.

Brandon entered the living room, and Giselle came forward. "Did you meet Savanna?"

"No."

Brandon was in a bad mood, so he replied briefly.

"I really don't understand what you want to do. Her friend seems to be very important to her. She came to me just now and was in a daze. Brandon, why don't you let Joshua help her?"

Joshua Mckinney was the top lawyer of the Cassel Group.

He could deal with all kinds of lawsuits.

Giselle could not bear to see Savanna suffer, so she wanted to help her daughter-in-law.

"Keep your hands off the matters about Savanna." Brandon's face was very cold. He pulled off the tie around his neck and walked upstairs. Suddenly, he thought of something. He stopped and turned around. He looked at Giselle with deep eyes and warned, "Otherwise, I will cut you off."

Giselle shivered. She looked at her son's tall back upstairs. Her lips trembled, and her face turned slightly pale

Even on the day when he brought Winnie's ashes back, or when she chased Winnie out, Brandon didn't talk to her like this.

Giselle felt the situation was a little serious.

Although she was sorry for Savanna, she was a little angry about Savanna's decision of abortion.

She did not dare to meddle in the affairs between Savanna and Brandon.

Although she was sorry for Savanna, she was a little angry about Savanna's decision of abortion.

Giselle hoped that they would make up.

Savanna had just returned home when Leo called her. Leo told her that a lawyer was willing to take over Gordon's case. Savanna and Leo were excited. Savanna asked Leo to come over and talk. Ten minutes later, Leo appeared.

They talked in the hall for a while, and Leo's phone rang. He walked to the balcony after he answered the phone.

Savanna went to the kitchen to prepare a plate of strawberries. When she returned, she saw that Leo had already finished the call. His face was gloomy. She frowned and asked.

“Who called you?”

“The lawyer said that he was too busy to take over Gordon’s case.”

It was obvious that someone had done something to stop that lawyer.

Their hope was dashed. Both of them remained silent. The atmosphere was solemn, and neither of them spoke.

The veins on Savanna’s fingers that held the crystal fruit plate bulged, and her teeth creaked.

She put down the fruit plate.

Savanna turned to put on her coat. She had just taken a step when Leo grabbed her arm. “Savanna, we can’t act rashly.”

Savanna looked at him, and her chest seemed to be burning with anger.

“Leo, it’s all my fault. Gordon was arrested because of me. I have to talk to Brandon about this.”

“We have no evidence,” Leo said weakly.

“If it wasn’t him, who else could it be?”

Savanna shouted excitedly, “He just doesn’t want me to be happy. I made a mistake and married him. Do I have to live in the shadow for the rest of my life?”

Her anger made sense.

However, Leo knew clearly why Brandon had done this.

He didn’t want Savanna to go to Brandon, not only because he didn’t want to break his calm

Leo knew that he might be too greedy.

“Savanna, maybe ... Mr. Cassel ... likes you.”

Brandon liked her?

When Savanna heard this, she actually burst out laughing as if she had heard the biggest joke.

“Leo, we all know that the woman he likes is Winnie. He can do anything for Winnie.”

ONI

Leo lowered his gaze and looked at Savanna’s foot. After a while, he said slowly.

“If he loved Winnie, it would be impossible for him to find another woman during this period.”

“That’s because Winnie’s legs were broken. She can’t satisfy him.”

Savanna said bluntly.

“Savanna..”

Leo wanted to say something but was interrupted by Savanna. “Stop...”

The muscles on Savanna’s face trembled uncontrollably from anger.

No matter what Leo said, it couldn’t calm the anger in her heart. She had endured it for a long time.

Suddenly, a buzz sounded.

Leo’s cell phone rang. He lowered his eyes and saw the words “Mr. Cassel” on the screen. He frowned.

His heart was beating like a drum. He paused for two seconds, then raised his finger, and pressed the answer button. "Hello."

"You are Leo Baker?"

It was not Brandon, but an unfamiliar male voice.

"Yes, I am"

"I am Mr. Cassel's assistant, Jim Raymond. Mr. Cassel said that you still had a month's salary. He asked you to come over and get the money," Jim said.

"Now?"

Leo looked out the window. It was at night. The lights in the city were on.

"Anytime," Jim replied.

"Alright."

After hanging up, Leo was silent and did not say a word.

Savanna frowned and asked, "Who called you?"

"Jim."

Leo's soft answer made Savanna angry again.

Everyone knew that Jim was Brandon's new assistant. He was just a lackey of Brandon.

Rage began to burn in Savanna's chest again.

"What did he say?"

"He asked me to get my last salary."

Leo replied as he walked out the door. After taking two steps, he stopped again. It seemed that he felt that he should say something to Savanna. He turned back and said to Savanna.

"Don't worry. It will be fine."

Before Savanna could speak, Leo had hurried out of her villa.

Savanna chased after him, only to see the car that Leo drove over quickly pass her.

Savanna got into her car and buckled the seat belt. She chased after him in a hurry.

She had just reached the intersection when she heard a loud bang in front of her. Two cars collided, and the collision was tragic. The car that had been hit on the roadside was Leo's.

In a flash, Savanna was so nervous that her heart almost jumped out of her chest.

Savanna stopped the car and quickly ran up. There were many people around, and the traffic police quickly came over. She pushed aside the crowd and turned Leo over with her trembling hands. What she saw was blood.

Savanna was so scared that her heart almost stopped beating.

She covered Leo's face with her hands, and soon, the warm blood fell through her snow-white fingers. Her hand trembled as she called the ambulance.

The ambulance whistled over and the medical staff moved Leo into the car. Savanna followed the ambulance

Winnie lived here.

If he didn't love her, why would he buy her this villa?

Winnie was chased out of the Cassel's house by Giselle. Brandon let her live there.

"Bran..."

Winnie paused.

When she saw Savanna's face, Winnie's smile froze on her face. Winnie seemed to be shocked. She thought that Brandon, who went out to buy her a thermos, had returned. She did not expect that Savanna would come.

Savanna did not want to talk to her. Her cold eyes glanced at Winnie's broken legs under the blanket. Then Savanna looked away. She reached out and pushed the door open. She walked past Winnie's wheelchair.

"Ms. Landis, your legs hurt. Just let me open the door."

The maid came out of the kitchen and saw that there was a female figure at the entrance of the living room. The woman had a cold expression on her face, and the aura around her was terrifying. The maid did not dare to speak anymore. She walked over and quickly pushed Winnie in.

"Savanna, what are you doing here?" Winnie asked.

Winnie was excited and opened the door regardless of the pain in her legs. Savanna knew that Brandon must have gone out.

She smiled and replied, "Of course, I'm not here to visit you. I want to see Brandon.

Where is he?"

Hearing that Savanna was here for Brandon, Winnie frowned. "He went out to buy something for me."

As soon as Winnie finished her words, footsteps came from the door.

Savanna lifted her eyes. She saw Brandon bending over to take off his shoes at the entrance. He changed into his slippers and walked in. The moment he saw Savanna, he paused slightly. There was not the slightest bit of surprise in his eyes, as if he had known that Savanna would come.

Brandon withdrew his gaze and looked at Winnie. He said to Winnie, "Winnie, there was only one left in the supermarket. Fortunately, I was fast."

Thank you, Brandon."

Winnie took the thermos and handed it to the maid, who quickly took it to charge.

Winnie's sweet voice was like a sharp sword that pierced deeply into Savanna's chest. If she had known that Winnie lived here, Savanna would not have come.

"It's fine, Winnie. If there's anything you need, tell me. After all, you are pregnant now."

Somehow, Brandon was especially enthusiastic about Winnie today

Winnie felt his enthusiasm and responded to the man she loved warmly.

"You're so good to the baby. The baby will definitely love you, Brandon."

Winnie's voice was affected, but Brandon seemed to be very pleased. He said, "Winnie, you seem to be very tired. Should I carry you upstairs so that you can rest for a while?"

"Sure!"

Winnie was very cooperative.

Brandon picked up Winnie and walked upstairs. Savanna could not help but look at them. Probably on purpose, Winnie reached out and wrapped her arms around Brandon's waist tightly, her lips almost touching Brandon's Adam's apple. This posture made Savanna suddenly think of the photo that Winnie sent her.

Savanna clenched her fingers. She tried to restrain her emotions. She was afraid that she would lose her mind and rush up to pull Winnie out of Brandon's arms.

A few minutes later, Brandon went down the stairs.

On his handsome face, there were vague red marks.

"Tell me, what do you want?"

Brandon lit a cigarette with the lighter.

Savanna went straight to the point. "Why did you find someone to hit Leo?"

Brandon paused slightly when he heard this as if he could not believe his ears. Then, he asked, "You think I did that?"

"Yes." A clear voice came out of Savanna's lips.

Brandon took a puff of his cigarette and suppressed the excitement surging in his chest.

He tried his best to calm himself down. "Savanna, am I a bad man in your heart?"

Savanna did not say anything,

"Let me tell you, Savanna. If I had wanted to deal with Leo, he would have died."

Brandon had the urge to tear Leo to shreds after he knew that Leo asked Gordon to help Savanna behind his back. However, it was just an impulse. From the beginning to the end, Brandon did not do anything to Leo.

"Didn't you do anything about Gordon?"

Savanna did not intend to let Brandon off, so, she asked sharply.

Brandon looked at her in surprise.

"I know that you hate me for having an abortion. But now, Winnie carries your baby.

Brandon, if you love her, you should live a happy life with her. Why do you push me like this? Do you just want me to listen to you because you can't accept the fact that I was no longer obedient? Brandon, I will listen to you. Please let Gordon off."

Brandon stared at Savanna's eyes. His eyes gradually turned slightly red. He took a swallow, and he asked, "Is that what you think?"

She felt that he forced her to listen to him.

It was only because he couldn't accept the fact.

"Am I wrong?" Savanna asked.

Brandon turned his face, and his eyes turned scarlet. "Scram."

He squeezed out a single word from his throat.

"Leo is still in the ICU. If he can't wake up, Brandon, I will make you pay the price."

Savanna left.

Brandon slowly turned his head and opened his red eyes. It was the first time that Brandon had been wronged. His heart ached, making it hard for him to breathe. In the afternoon, Jim appeared in Leo's ICU with a group of top medical teams. After an hour, Leo woke up. Not long after Leo woke up, Gordon came. Savanna was shocked to see Gordon, but she walked away to let Gordon and Leo talk. Hearing Gordon's voice, Leo struggled to open his eyes. The moment he saw Gordon, Leo was so excited that his lips trembled. Gordon reached out his hand and held onto the hand that Leo raised. The two hands held each other tightly. Gordon said, "Leo, I misunderstood you. We will still be good buddies." The sound of the door closing came from behind. Gordon glanced at Savanna, who went out, and said, "Leo, I thought that she was your girlfriend. I didn't expect..." Gordon did not expect Savanna to be Brandon's woman. In Gordon's heart, Leo was just dragged down. Gordon knew that he could not afford to provoke Brandon, but he had his own dignity. Gordon wouldn't let it go like this. It would take a long time for him to do something. After knowing that Savanna was Brandon's woman, Gordon did not dare to introduce clients to Savanna. He did not even dare to associate with Savanna. The Thompson Group was asked to pay the debts that it owed the Nelson Bank. Savanna's belly gradually became larger, and it was a little difficult for her to work. She knew that if she continued to stay in New York, she would inevitably meet Brandon or the people around him, such as Jim. If Brandon knew that she didn't have an abortion, he would definitely continue to pester her. Although she was concerned about the Thompson Group, which was about to close down, she had to find a place to give birth to the child secretly. Therefore, Savanna hastily got her work done and left Justin in charge of the company. She bought a plane ticket and secretly flew to Ireland. A week later, in Ireland, Savanna sat alone by the corridor of the design institute, looking at the handsome men coming and going outside. Suddenly, a handsome face came into her sight. It was Brandon.

Savanna's pupils suddenly widened. She thought she had seen wrongly and rubbed her eyes. But she didn't make a mistake. It was Brandon. What did he come here for? Brandon was followed by a group of men. He was walking in front in a suit and leather shoes. He looked great. Brandon did not see her. He just lowered his head, as if he was listening to the man closest to him. The man might be a manager. Although the man kept talking, Brandon did not look happy.

Obviously, Brandon was here for a business trip.
They walked past her directly
Savanna was afraid that Brandon would find her and suppressed the panic in her heart.
She quickly packed her things and slipped away.
Brandon turned around and happened to see the slim figure that had passed through the corridor of the design institute. It looked like Savanna.
Savanna's face inexplicably appeared in his mind again.
He thought, I must be crazy.
Brandon was annoyed.
Savanna finished bathing. Just as she lay down on the bed, the creaking sound of the bed sounded next door again. Savanna held her head and cursed in a low voice. She regretted having rented this cheap room.
After enduring for a long time, the noises next door did not stop. There were even occasional screams of a woman and the breathing of a man, making her unable to sleep.
Afraid that it would be a sleepless night like last night, Savanna rushed out and knocked on the door next door.
The one who came to open the door was a blonde woman with a lustful look and disheveled clothes. The woman looked at her coldly and raised her eyebrows. "What's the matter?"

"Please be quiet,"
Savanna said and returned to her room.
However, they did not stop. Things became even worse. Savanna couldn't take it anymore and called the police on her mobile phone. Soon, the police came and took the two people away. The noises finally quieted down.

With his head smashed, the man was so angry that he chased after Savanna with his lackeys.
Savanna ran desperately, and one of her shoes fell off, but she didn't care.
Somehow, she bumped into someone. "Sor..."
Savanna looked up, and she paused.
It was Brandon.
Savanna's heart was pounding. She thought, why am I so unlucky? Brandon was also stunned. He looked at her with surprise.

It was obvious that Brandon had not expected to meet her here. Savanna turned around and saw that the group of men was coming after her from the corner. She was about to run when Brandon stopped her.

“Let go.”

Savanna was so anxious that she was almost sweating.

“Why are you here?”

Brandon asked.

Brandon looked down from her face and landed on Savanna’s slightly swollen abdomen. He seemed to have thought of something, and his long and narrow eyebrows furrowed. “Savanna, you...”

Savanna shook off his hand and ran forward.

She ran fast.

Brandon gritted his teeth. He looked at the group of men who were closer and then looked in the direction in which Savanna had disappeared. A bad premonition struck his heart. He cursed in a low voice and ran after her.

Because of Brandon, Savanna ran even harder.

At that moment, those punks were nothing to her. If Brandon found out that she didn’t have an abortion... Savanna shook her head and did not dare to think further.

But she really couldn’t run anymore. Savanna stopped to rest and breathed heavily. Her legs also became weak because she ran too far. She knew that she couldn’t use up her strength like this. She bent down and entered a café.

She placed the money on the counter and took the cup of Mocha that the bearded man handed over.

Savanna bit the straw and walked out of the café. She lifted her eyes and saw a man.

She was stunned, and her body trembled slightly. It was Brandon.

Savanna froze, holding her breath.

Brandon stood there with his hands in his pockets. His gaze was as fierce as that of a wild beast. It was as if he was staring at his prey. He seemed to want to tear her apart.

Savanna forced a smile, her smile stiff.

Her eyelids could not stop trembling as she said, “Hey, handsome.”

Brandon pursed her lips coldly and didn’t speak. The atmosphere was oppressive.

Savanna came back to her senses. She bit the straw and wanted to walk around him.

As she walked past him, Brandon pulled his hand out of his pocket and pulled her into his arms. He fiercely pressed her against the wall.

“Let go of me, Brandon.”

Savanna shouted.

Brandon’s eyes were burning as he asked in a hoarse voice, “Why are you here?”

“I got something to do here. What about you?”

Savanna beat around the bush.

However, Brandon was too smart to be trifled with. His hot fingers rubbed her soft hair and slowly slid down her lower jaw along her hairline. His fingertips were so hot that she felt as if her skin would be burned. His warm breath sprayed on her neck like feathers brushing back and forth in her heart. It was itchy, which made her uncomfortable. "I'm here for you." When his breath reached her lips, before she could react, he had already bit her lips without hesitation

He kissed her without even thinking about it, fiercely and wildly.

When Savanna was about to die from lack of oxygen, Brandon let go of her lips and turned to kiss her soft ears. Savanna gasped and wanted to push him away, but she had no strength at all.

When she felt a strange gaze, Savanna opened her eyes and looked out lazily.

A few steps away, the blonde woman looked at her with a sneer.

Savanna suddenly woke up. She pushed Brandon away and wanted to run away.

Brandon had always been in a state of alert, afraid that she would escape. When she pushed him with her hand, he immediately grabbed Savanna's arm. With a little force, Savanna fell back into his embrace.

"What a loving couple."

The voice of the blonde woman was cynical and angry.

"It seems that you are not a holy woman either."

Seeing the blonde woman walking towards Savanna, Brandon quickly shielded Savanna behind him, his sharp eyebrows piercing.

"Madam, please stop. Otherwise, I will hurt you."

His voice was cold, and his anger grew.

Ignoring Brandon's warning, the blonde woman smiled sinisterly. Step by step, she walked forward and stopped in front of Brandon. Her lips moved closer and stopped when she was inches away from the man. Her beautiful lips parted.

"Handsome boy, you are not the only man. She and I are neighbors. This week, I saw several men come to her room and press her against the wall to have fun.

“You are just one of them.”

In the end, the blonde woman added.

The way she looked at Savanna was fierce.

The woman turned and left.

Savanna didn't know where this woman came from, nor did she know why she said this. She nervously looked at Brandon. Seeing that Brandon's expression was calm and his emotions didn't seem to fluctuate because of the woman's words, she felt relieved.

Then, she felt funny. She didn't know why she was nervous. She had broken up with Brandon. Even if she dated another man, it was normal.

Besides, didn't Brandon always think that she had a relationship with Cain, Gordon, and the others?

What did it matter if there were more men?

She thought to herself.

“How did you provoke her?”

Brandon's voice was extremely hoarse, perhaps it was because the strong feelings had not faded yet.

“She's mad. Ignore her.”

Savanna didn't seem to want to communicate with Brandon.

Brandon protested when she turned around and left. He called out to her, “Savanna.”

Savanna ignored him and went straight ahead.

Brandon was furious. He quickly walked up and reached out to grab Savanna's hand, but Savanna once again flung his hand away.

“Savanna, I have let go of Gordon. I have also cured Leo. What else do you want?”

Brandon was forced into a corner by Savanna. He had never compromised.

Hearing this, Savanna stopped walking and slowly turned around. She looked at Brandon with a cynical and funny gaze. She slowly opened her mouth and said, “You were the one who dealt with Gordon. Naturally, you let him go. Do you want me to thank you for your magnanimity?”

“I didn't find anyone to hit Leo. I wouldn't do that.”

Brandon didn't bother to explain.

“Even if you didn't find someone to hit Leo, he once died for you. Shouldn't you save him?”

Brandon was speechless after being asked by Savanna.

It was amazing that the elite of the business world would be speechless.

His gaze fell on her white toes that were stained with blood, and he seemed to faintly feel distressed.

“You are injured. I will take you to the hospital,” he said.

Savanna lowered her head and glanced at her shoes that had fallen off due to running. At this moment, she must be in a sorry state, but what did that matter? She smiled and said, “It's just a small injury.”

Brandon was extremely unhappy with her cold attitude of rejecting him. All the cells in his body were clamoring for discomfort and depression. There was also stagnation and depression. He took a breath and pressed his hands on Savanna's thin shoulders. He stared into her eyes.

"Savanna, let's talk."

"There's nothing to talk about." Savanna wanted to get off the hands that were pressing on her shoulders, but the hands that she stretched out were held tightly in his hands instead. The dry and warm palms made Savanna's heart start to inexplicably mess up again.

She found that she was addicted to him.

"I'm very happy that you didn't abort the child."

Brandon's deep eyes sparkled as he said this. He kissed her fingers and gradually changed to biting.

Savanna thought that she would not be able to see Brandon in Ireland, so she did not deliberately wear loose clothes. She knew that the baby was almost four months old, and her protruding belly could be seen at a glance.

No matter how stubborn she was, it was clear that she was pregnant.

And the father of the baby was Brandon.

She had been hiding in Ireland, but he had still found her. Knowing that some things could not be avoided, Savanna simply wanted to end things with him completely. She pleaded softly.

"Brandon, I can't give the baby to you. You can ask me to do anything except this."

"No," Brandon refused immediately. He scratched his hair and said, "The child is a descendant of the Cassel family. My mother will never allow the offspring of the Cassel family to be lost outside."

It was this reason again. Savanna smiled weakly. She was a little exhausted. "I'll talk to Mrs. Cassel."

"Yes, but before that, you must return to New York with me."

Brandon seemed to be afraid that she would run away again.

With his intelligence, he had guessed the reason why Savanna appeared in Ireland.

She wanted to give birth to the child without him knowing. Thinking of this possibility, Brandon was frightened, and his face darkened.

"Where do you live? Let's go and pack up." Brandon changed from his usual coldness and was as enthusiastic as a young man who had just fallen in love.

"I'm not going back. I've already contacted the doctors here..."

Before Savanna could finish, she was interrupted by Brandon. "Don't even think about it."

Brandon went back to Savanna's rented apartment with her. The man frowned when he saw the apartment.

"How can people live here?" Fortunately, he ran into her on a business trip. Otherwise, he would have missed her and their child.

Brandon booked two tickets back to New York and could only stay in the hotel he booked tonight.

Brandon wouldn't allow Savanna to live alone.

The two of them rushed around for a while, and their bodies were covered in sweat. Savanna went to the bathroom to take a shower. Brandon went out to buy the medicine. Savanna took a bath and was drying her hair with a hairdryer.

Brandon brought back the medicine and applied medicine to Savanna's injured toe.

Brandon had never been so nice to her, and Savanna was a little flattered.

After he applied the medicine, Brandon took a change of clothes and entered the bathroom. He looked at Savanna with blazing eyes and sternly warned, "Don't even think about running away. I can find you wherever you go."

Brandon went into the bathroom to shower.

Savanna stood in the room, feeling indescribable.

Brandon said that he could find her wherever she went.

He said this as if he loved her, but Savanna knew that he wanted her to go back with him just to report to Giselle. Because Savanna was pregnant with the offspring of the Cassel family.

The offspring of the Cassel family couldn't be lost. This was the rule of the Cassel family in history.

All of this had nothing to do with love. Bitterness welled up in her heart, and tears unconsciously crawled all over her face.

Ding-a-ling.

The doorbell rang. Savanna thought it was a waiter who came up to deliver something because she had just called for supper. When she opened the door, she did not see the waiter's face. Instead, she saw Winnie's familiar face.

"Savanna?" Winnie's gaze met Savanna's face as if she was quite shocked. "You came to Ireland too?"

"Yes," Savanna replied coldly.

She moved her body and let Winnie into the room.

(00m.

The sound of the door opening came from the other side of the bathroom. Winnie inexplicably grabbed Savanna's hand, and her voice was sharp and helpless.

"Savanna, I didn't come here on purpose. I was too sad to hear you say that. Brandon has been on a business trip for several days. He called me and said that he had a cold. I was afraid that no one would take care of him, so I rushed over."

Savanna clearly said nothing.

Winnie was acting, and even if Brandon caught a cold, there was no need for her to rush over from New York to take care of him.

Savanna felt a chill in her heart.

"I didn't expect to disturb you. I'm leaving."

Winnie let go of Savanna's hand and made a pitiful gesture to leave.

Savanna looked at the figure of the man who was stunned at the door of the bathroom and sneered, her voice cold.

“I should be the one to leave, not you.”

After saying that, Savanna walked to the door with her luggage. Winnie cried anxiously, “Savanna, that’s not what I meant. You misunderstood me.”

She pushed the wheelchair and chased after Savanna. She reached out and grabbed Savanna’s hand. Savanna was already angry. When Winnie grabbed her, she swung her hand fiercely. Winnie lost her balance and was thrown out of the chair.

“Ah...”

Winnie screamed. She covered her stomach and lay in a pool of blood. Under her skirt, there was blood. It looked horrifying.

Savanna’s face was pale, and the luggage in her hand fell to the ground. She was about to go forward to help Winnie up, but unexpectedly, Brandon moved faster than her. He hastily put on his clothes, rushed over, reached out to pick up Winnie, and rushed out of the hotel.

Brandon accidentally knocked Savanna down due to his panic. He didn’t even look back at her and just left in a hurry.

Brandon rushed out and brought along a gust of cold wind that fiercely hit Savanna’s face.

van

Savanna couldn’t help but shiver. She sat on the cold floor and stared at the dark red blood stains on the floor, her eyes empty and confused.

Savanna clenched her fists tightly, trying to suppress the urge to run to the hospital.

Savanna wondered, why do I have to go?

Even if Winnie has a miscarriage, it is Winnie’s fault. What does it have to do with me?

Savanna did not know how long she had been frozen. Until her body was numb, she struggled to get up and sat on the hotel’s snow-white bed in a daze.

Brandon didn’t return.

Savanna slept uneasily. In her dream, she saw Brandon keep blaming her with a ruthless expression. What he said sounded unpleasant. He said that Winnie lost her baby and that Savanna murdered his child. He wanted Savanna to pay a painful price. Brandon’s face was sinister and terrifying.

When Savanna woke up from her dream, she opened her sour eyes. The pillow was wet by her tears and stuck to her cheek.

Savanna stayed up until dawn. She got up and made the bed. Then she took out her mobile phone to call Brandon to ask about the situation. Just as the number was dialed, she hesitated and clicked the end button

Just as Savanna was in a dilemma, a voice came from outside. She looked at the door and saw that Brandon used the room card to open the door. He looked very tired, and his hair was a little messy. It seemed that he had been tossing and turning for a night without sleeping. His eyes were bloodshot.

“How ... is Winnie?” Savanna asked.

Brandon took off his coat and didn't look at Savanna. He replied in a bland voice, “The baby is safe, but she's a little depressed.”

Savanna glanced at the wrinkled coat in Brandon's hand. A part of the coat was wet. Winnie should have cried in his arms after waking up.

That scene wrung Savanna's heart.

Savanna twisted her fingers together in silence for a long time. She then said, “Do you think I was the one who harmed her?”

“I did not say that.”

Brandon put his coat on the bed, took clean clothes from his luggage, put them on the bed, and took off his watch. Then, he walked into the bathroom. Not long later, the sound of running water came from the bathroom.

Brandon didn't say that, but he thought so.

Brandon's cold expression showed that he believed Winnie's performance.

When Brandon came out of the shower, he glanced at the luggage in the corner that Savanna had packed. His eyes turned slightly gloomy. “I've canceled the plane ticket. I can't leave for now.”

ne

As Brandon said this, he pulled off the towel on his waist. Regardless of Savanna's presence, he got changed.

Savanna turned her face away and said softly, “You can stay with Winnie. I'll go back to New York.”

“Let's go together,” Brandon replied as he lowered his head and put on his watch.

“No need. I have other things to do.”

Savanna picked up her luggage and walked to the door. Without thinking, Brandon rushed up and grabbed her hand.

Savanna looked up at Brandon, who had a gloomier face. Anger welled up inside Savanna. “I didn't push her, and I didn't say those words. Even if Winnie has a miscarriage, it has nothing to do with me,” Savanna was not going to take the blame.

Savanna roared.

Brandon stood in front of her. Under great pressure. Savanna was unable to breathe. However, his expression did not change. There was no trace of joy or anger in his ice-cold eyes.

Savanna felt impotent.

Frustration arose inside her.

After a moment of silence, Brandon raised his hand. Savanna's figure swayed, and she retreated two steps in horror. Her face turned pale as she protected her belly.

“You can't hurt my baby.”

Brandon was stunned. His raised hand froze in mid-air. After a long while, he put his hand back into his pocket. His fingertips pinched into his palm. The pain was bone-piercing.

He just wanted to hug her. Why did she misunderstand that he wanted to hurt her? Brandon smiled bitterly. "That is also my child."

Savanna wondered, Brandon, you love Winnie's baby more, don't you? Savanna wanted to ask, but she held back.

She didn't dare to ask or discuss this with Brandon because she didn't have the confidence.

Brandon rubbed Savanna's hair and said in a gentle tone.

"No matter what, she is injured and can't go back to New York. She is our friend. We can't leave her alone, right?"

There was nothing wrong with this.

What Brandon said gave Savanna an illusion that they were husband and wife, while Winnie was just an outsider.

But Savanna knew that it was just her illusion.

If Brandon did not care about Winnie, he would not have sent Winnie to the hospital in such a hurry and stayed in the hospital all night.

"Since she wants to come, why did you let us meet?"

Savanna thought, you know I don't get along with Winnie.

Brandon, are you happy to see me in pain?

Brandon was surprised by Savanna's question and explained.

"I didn't know Winnie would come, Last night, she called and heard my cough. She said she would come to take care of me. I didn't agree. Who knew that she ... would come today?"

"If you don't like her, I won't let you meet often."

It was the hospital calling. The phone ended with Brandon's cursing, and he became annoyed after the phone.

"Winnie is missing. She is pregnant and has difficulties walking. If you are worried about her, go with me. We must find her."

Before Savanna could answer him, Brandon grabbed her arm and left the hotel.

Hearing that Winnie was missing, Savanna stopped talking.

vann

Although she hated Winnie, Savanna sincerely did not want anything to happen to Winnie. After all, half of their blood was the same.

Brandon and Savanna rushed to the hospital. When the nurse saw Brandon, she cried even harder. The nurse sobbed and said,

"I left for medicine. When I returned, the patient had disappeared. I searched downstairs, upstairs, and the restroom. However, I found her nowhere. I'm so sorry, Mr. Cassel."

"What's the use of apologizing? Is this how you take care of patients?" Brandon couldn't control his anger and snapped,

"What's the use of scolding her? Go and find Winnie now!" Savanna reminded. Annarem

Brandon then began to make calls and used all his connections in Ireland to find Winnie.

He checked the hospital's surveillance video and saw Winnie had left the ward in a metal wheelchair and entered the elevator. The elevator slowly moved to the bottom floor, and no one came out of the elevator.

They searched for a whole day and a whole night but still didn't get Winnie, as if she had vanished into thin air.

Brandon and Savanna returned to the hotel. Neither of them had the mood to communicate due to Winnie's disappearance. Brandon called the police. Late at night, the police called him back, "Mr. Cassel, we found her. Please come to the police station."

Brandon grabbed his coat and buttoned up his suit as he turned to Savanna, "Come with me."

But Savanna didn't move and had no intention of moving.

Brandon stopped and ordered coldly, "Savanna, go with me."

Savanna did not want to provoke the angry Brandon, so she followed Brandon and left the hotel to the police station, although she had been extremely tired.

When the Irish policeman saw Brandon, he said seriously.

"Mr. Cassel, I'm sorry."

Brandon furrowed and said, "Please, what happened to her?"

The policeman took them to the interrogation room, and behind the glass, there were several men. The policeman pointed to the men and said,

"They violated Ms. Landis. If we had come later, I'm afraid, Ms. Landis would have died."

Brandon's eyes trembled, and his expression changed aggressively. Brandon grabbed the collar of the policeman, stared at the policeman with his cold eyes, and questioned.

"Are you sure it's Winnie?"

"Yes."

The policeman was frightened by Brandon's aura. He removed Brandon's hands from his collar and found a photo of Winnie on his phone. There was a woman in the photo with disheveled clothes and messy hair. Several men were on her. The scene was obscene and horrible.

Brandon's figure swayed as if he couldn't find his consciousness for a moment.

And his lips turned pale in an instant.

Brandon soon turned from sorrow to fury. He raised his fists and was about to rush in.

Brandon wanted to defeat those hooligans soundly, but the policeman stopped him. The policeman said, "Mr. Cassel, calm down, please."

Brandon then realized that he had lost control and tried to calm himself down. After a few seconds,

Brandon asked in a trembling voice.

"Where is Winnie?"

"We called the hospital, and they took her to the hospital. She is in bad condition and needs a comprehensive examination."

Brandon pointed at the figures in the interrogation room and ordered, with his voice as sharp as a knife,

"None of those bastards can be spared."

"Of course."

Brandon left the police station in a huff after getting the policeman's promise.

Savanna's face had turned pale for Brandon and the policeman's conversation. She was stunned for Winnie was raped.

How dramatic.

To confirm if Winnie was acting, she caught up with Brandon and took a taxi to the hospital, together.

The atmosphere in the hospital was inexplicably sad.

The nurse stood at the door. She was at a loss because of the panic. When she saw Brandon, she became even more helpless and didn't know what to say. Brandon ignored the nurse and passed by.

Winnie's body was shaking uncontrollably in the bed, and her messy hair was scattered on her face. The footsteps could not attract her attention, and her startled eyes were fixed on something out of the window.

A nurse said behind Brandon and Savanna in an injured voice, "I want to comb Ms. Landis' hair, but she won't let me and even scratched me."

Savanna turned to look at the young nurse. There was a deep bloody scratch on her left cheek, and there was a bruise in the corner of her eye. Savanna withdrew her gaze from the young nurse's face and landed on the mess on the ground.

The broken metal pieces on the ground proved that the nurse was not lying.

Savanna waved at the nurse, and the nurse quickly left.

Brandon clenched his fists so hard that they creaked. He squeezed Winnie's name from his throat. He sounded so in pain.

Winnie did not react.

Her eyes remained hollow and dull, like a living dead man.

"Winnie, I'm sorry,"

Brandon stretched out his hand. Just as his fingertips touched Winnie's face, Winnie seemed to have been electrocuted. Her entire body huddled up, and her face turned to Brandon slowly with fear and unease. She stared at Brandon coldly and sharply and warned, "Don't touch me. Otherwise, Brandon won't let you off."

Winnie didn't recognize Brandon and still trapped herself in the devil's nightmare. Looking at Winnie, Brandon felt his heart was being cut by knives. Brandon spoke to Winnie in distress, wanting to wake her up from her nightmare. Winnie listened to his words and stared at him blankly for a long time. Then, she started crying.

"You're not Brandon. He doesn't want me anymore. He doesn't want me anymore."

As she spoke, Winnie became excited and even shouted.

"He doesn't want me anymore!"

Tears rolled down from Winnie's eyes, sparkling and translucent like pearls. Drop by drop, all of those tears hitting Brandon's heart.

Brandon felt extremely guilty. He had failed to live up to Winnie's trust. He could not imagine Winnie's mood as she was waiting for him to save her. Winnie had waited for too long, and all her hope turned to despair.

Brandon blurted out, "I want you. How can I not want you?"

Brandon wiped away Winnie's tears at the corner of her eyes with his fingers and the tear-wetted hair sticking on her face. He pulled her into his arms, and then Winnie cried out and put her arms around Brandon's waist tightly.

"Brandon, why didn't you come to me? Why?"

As she spoke, Winnie smashed Brandon's broad shoulder with her soft fists again and again.

Brandon did not move but endured.

Savanna was standing behind them all the time. When she heard Brandon say he wanted Winnie, Savanna was petrified.

Savanna always knew that Brandon loved Winnie with his whole heart, but she still felt her heart was grabbed by an invisible hand hard and she couldn't breathe.

The moment the tears rolled down her face, Savanna left the room and quietly stood at the door of the ward. She felt her heart was filled with holes, so she covered her chest with her hands, and her thin figure kept trembling.

Standing in silence for a while, Savanna wiped the tears and turned to leave the hospital.

The night was dark and boundless, and the few stars flickered. Savanna stumbled on the streets of the capital city of Ireland alone.

The man's eyebrows were stained with snowflakes, and his body was stained with cold air. Her slight movements woke him up. Leo opened his hazy eyes.

"Savanna, you're awake."

Savanna nodded, remembering that she had fainted on the street, and she was still on the phone with Leo before she fainted.

How could Leo fly to Ireland so quickly? How long had she been asleep?

Seeing through her thoughts, Leo explained in a hoarse voice, "I happened to come over for something, so I came to find you."

The truth was... After Leo shouted over the phone countless times and could no longer hear Savanna's voice, he was anxious, so he immediately borrowed a helicopter from his only rich friend. He drove the helicopter to Ireland and used the satellite positioning system to find Savanna with great effort.

When he found Savanna, Savanna fell in the cold place, her whole body frozen. The doctor told him that if he was one step late, the consequences would be unimaginable.

However, Leo would not tell Savanna about this.

The love he had for her was buried in his heart.

Savanna knew that Leo had lied, but she still thanked him. She moved her hand, wanting to pull it out of Leo's large palm. Only then did Leo realize that he was still holding Savanna's hand tightly as if he was afraid that Savanna would leave him.

Knowing that this action was inappropriate, Leo immediately released his hand and said to Savanna with a flush.

"Just now... I fell asleep, and my mind was a little unclear. Sorry."

Savanna lowered her eyes and bit her lips without speaking.

When the doctor came to examine Savanna, Leo asked the doctor, "Is the child alright?"

Only then did Savanna know that Leo already knew that she did not have an abortion.

To help her break free, Leo did not tell Brandon the truth. Because of this matter, Brandon fired him.

As soon as they got into the taxi, Savanna's phone rang. She took out her phone from her pocket and looked at Brandon's name on her phone screen. She put the phone back in her pocket and listened to the noise of the phone. Leo did not ask more.

The phone hung up automatically after sixteen seconds of ringing. Then, it remained in Savanna's pocket forever.

Savanna said, "Leo, help me book a ticket to New York."

She did not want to stay in the same place with Brandon and Winnie.

She felt that her heart was so heavy that she couldn't breathe.

"Alright."

Leo did not ask for the reason. He directly booked a plane ticket for Savanna to go back to New York and personally sent Savanna to the ticket gate. Only then did he use an excuse to leave.

Savanna did not ask much about Leo's whereabouts. They were unimportant to each other, and for Leo's help, Savanna had nothing but gratitude.

Leo drove the helicopter and followed the flight that Savanna took to New York.

The reason why Savanna chose to return to New York was that she felt that since Brandon knew that the child still existed, she had no reason to hide anymore.

Savanna had just returned home. When Justin found out that she was back, he immediately came over to report on his work. Savanna seemed extremely tired. She waved at Justin, indicating for him to come back another day. Justin left.

What Giselle said touched Savanna's sensitive nerves.

"There is no room for negotiation on this matter. Everything can be up to you, Savanna. Only this matter cannot." "Winnie's character is obvious to all. To put it bluntly, I don't believe her. The Cassel family wouldn't want a child of unknown origin." After Giselle finished speaking, regardless of whether Savanna was willing or not, she began to pack Savanna's luggage. Unable to stop Giselle, Savanna was speechless. She touched her forehead and stood in place, full of anger. Giselle domineeringly sent all of Savanna's luggage to the car to pick Savanna up. Savanna said, "Mrs. Cassel, listen to me." Giselle said, "Let's go back to the Rose Villas and have a good talk. Now, let's leave this place first." As she spoke, Giselle held Savanna's hand. Mary made dinner, and Savanna was sitting at the dining table for dinner. The phone suddenly rang in the quiet space. She looked at the unfamiliar number on the phone and picked up the phone. "Savanna, you finally picked up the phone." Cain was pleasantly surprised. Then, he exhaled heavily and said, "I haven't been able to contact you for so long. Where have you been?" Cain sounded deeply concerned. She found out that every time she met Cain, Brandon would find fault with Cain in secret. Since that, Savanna deliberately kept a distance from Cain. Not only that, but she also deleted all of Cain's contact numbers. If she knew that it was Cain's call, she would not have answered it. Savanna looked at the darkness outside the window, and her gaze fell on the figure swaying in the corner. Rather than saying that it was the person that Giselle left behind to take care of her, it was better to say that Brandon had hired this person to watch her. Savanna's lips curved into a faint smile. She said, "I am at the Rose Villas." "Alright, I'll come over immediately." Savanna seemed to want to meet him too much. Savanna told Cain another address. Cain did not think much about where the Rose Villas were. After ending the call, he drove over in a hurry. "Savanna, did I offend you? You deleted all my contact details." Cain was very angry.

The moment they met, he complained.

Savanna smiled but didn't say anything. She asked Mary to pour a cup of tea for Cain. Cain sat down and carefully looked at Savanna. After half a month, Savanna seemed to have lost weight. Her chin was sharper than before, and her outline was more delicate and beautiful. Her skin was attractive. Looking at her like this, Cain felt his heart rippling. However, when his eyes swept past Savanna's slightly protruding belly, his body seemed to be splashed with a basin of cold water. It was so cold that he swayed on the spot. Cain was stunned for a moment, and his fingers that were holding the cup turned pale as he muttered absentmindedly.

"That's great."

"Cain, why did you come here?"

Savanna asked.

Cain's eyes went blank for a moment before he came back to his senses. He softly and mechanically replied, "It's nothing."

Suddenly realizing that he was wrong, he immediately changed his words.

"Where have you been during this period?"

Seeing that Savanna did not respond, he immediately said.

"I went to the Thompson Group to find you. Justin won't tell me where you went. I'm a bit worried!"

"I went to Ireland on a business trip."

Savanna's voice was flat and mechanical, without any emotion.

The sudden ringing of his phone interrupted Cain.

Cain took a look at his phone and hung up impatiently. Unexpectedly, just as he hung up, there was a call again. Cain hung up again, and that person called again. Cain was annoyed. He picked up the phone and shouted, "What are you trying to do?"

It was unknown what that person had said, but Cain looked very troubled.

"Let's talk about it tomorrow. Something is going on now. Bye."

happen between men and women naturally happened. After the relationship, Liana came to find him every day, and he clearly said to her that he could not accept her, and would not marry her. Liana said that she wanted happiness instead of love. Every time they slept together, he wore condoms. Where did the child come from? Cain was badly battered. He tugged at the tie around his neck, not in the mood to talk to Savanna anymore. He said to Savanna, "I have something urgent to deal with." And then Cain left.

Outside the villa, under the shade of the green belt, there was a Cayenne parked there. At this time, Brandon was smoking in the car. When he saw Cain coming out of the villa, he got in the car and started the car to leave. His narrow eyebrows were tightly knitted, and his eyes were cold.

When Brandon came back, he recognized that the car parked in front of his house was Cain's. He retreated and drove the car to the opposite side. After stopping the car, Brandon called Liana. After a while, Brandon came out.

Liana had never disappointed him.

Brandon extinguished the cigarette between his fingers and started the car again. The black Cayenne drove out of the green belt and made a turn about 330 feet ahead. The car drove back at top speed and drove into the door of the Rose Villas villa.

Brandon had just parked the car when Jim called him. "Mr. Cassel, Leo borrowed Dax's plane."

Suddenly, Brandon's eyes turned cold. "In the future, I don't want to see Dax anymore."

Due to his anger, Brandon did not seriously think about why Leo would use Dax's exclusive helicopter to fly to Ireland.

Brandon hung up the phone and entered the room. The empty hall was brightly lit, but there was no one around. His heart was filled with a faint sense of loss. He turned around and walked to the bedroom. He reached out and gently pushed open the door. The room was filled with a fragrance as if someone had just taken a bath.

Under the white woven lamp, Savanna was lying on the bed in her moon-white pajamas. Her face was covered with a book called "Impromptu Speech". She seemed to be asleep. His light footsteps gradually approached, but it did not make her react. Brandon turned his head to look at the TV on the wall. The TV was in silent mode, and the TV screen kept switching. Light and shadow flashed through his eyes.

Brandon ignored Savanna to appease Winnie. He did not know when Savanna left the hospital. When he reacted, he could not find her.

He called her many times, but either no one answered, or the call was in progress.

Brandon was worried. On the second day, Brandon could not find Savanna and directly flew back to New York with Winnie.

Knowing that Savanna had finally returned to the Thompson's home, he was finally relieved. He knew that Savanna would refuse to go back to the Rose Villas with him, so he let his mother go, and his mother did not disappoint him.

However, he had just learned from Jim that Leo had brought her back.

Brandon felt heartache,

It was painful to the point that he felt as if even his internal organs were stuck together.
