

Obsessed CEO Throws Himself at Me Chapter 1808

Chapter 1808 Settle The Score

Vinson's gaze turned cold when he realized the investors who had pulled out their investments were now in the waiting room.

Upon seeing his icy expression, the receptionist hurriedly explained, "Mr. Nightshire, I've already told them you weren't around, but they..."

To her surprise, Vinson merely nodded and strode toward the elevator while pretending not to have noticed the men. One of them, however, had already spotted him and hastily stood up. "Mr. Nightshire..."

The four other men quickly followed suit, and the sight of Vinson sent them making a beeline for him. "Mr. Nightshire!" they shouted in unison.

"What's the matter?" Vinson replied, narrowing his eyes as he stared at the men. For a moment, the group could only exchange sheepish glances. They knew they had gone overboard with their actions, but no matter how embarrassing it was, they needed to stand up and face the music.

had known Vinson could make a comeback, they wouldn't have withdrawn their investments in the first place. "Mr. Nightshire, we truly had no choice work together again," Vinson replied as he coolly surveyed stepped into the elevator, leaving the few men looking at one another dejectedly before dragging themselves out of partnership with Nightshire Group again, but as long as before, but it still had significant influence and power in the business world. If Vinson wanted to, he could always take them down in the blink of an eye. Therefore, as much as the men were disheartened at Vinson's words, they also felt relieved that he had chosen to let the office, he ordered Rayson on tenterhooks ever since Vinson's return. After all, they were the ones who had pressured company shares and foiled their plan, the the directors learned about the meeting, they quickly started a discussion should we do now? Does Vinson want to settle the score my heart is racing, I can't help but have