I am a quadrillionaire chapter 2190-“Okay, Mr. Rivers, you don’t have to blame yourself. It’s nothing serious. Now that we’re here, let’s take a look! In any case, it will be nighttime soon.”

After speaking, David stepped into the arena.

Thor and Beanie followed immediately.

When they got there, everyone was wearing masks, so they did not know each other. They were all strangers, so they could play however they wanted.

Even people who knew each other would pretend not to recognize each other.

They would not expose the other party either.

This was the rule of the underground trade fair.

Anyone who dared to speak out about this or expose others would lose the qualification to participate again and would be held accountable by the organizer.

How exactly they would be punished was unknown.

Regardless, those who were qualified to participate were not fools, so they would definitely not break these rules.

David wandered around.

The venue was very large, and it could even be described as a small market town built underground.

The service staff inside did not wear masks, but there were more of them than the participants who were wearing masks. All of them were beauties that were one in a million.

One could constantly see masked men harassing service staff all over the place.

On the other hand, service staff who were harassed looked like they were welcoming them with reluctance.

Their voices also made the harassers want more.

Fortunately, they were just harassing the service staff, and no one did anything excessive under the public eye.

There should be regulations about this.

Otherwise, how could these guys who came to release their emotions hold themselves back?

In addition to the hall in the middle, there were several other places in the surrounding area with other goods inside.

One of them was the busiest and the noise from there was also the loudest.

David walked over to check it out.

There was a large group of people around, and in the middle was a small sunken field about a few hundred square meters in size.

Two humanoids were fighting below.

Upon taking a closer look, neither was human, and one of them had a tail growing from his bottom.

With just one glance, David turned and left.

It was fine that both sides of the battle were women, but they were not wearing any bloody clothes.

This was simply unbearable to watch.

The onlookers were all very excited and they were all shouting in joy.

David also could not bear to see what was going on in several other places.

This place fully revealed the ugly side of human nature.

It was indeed a place to release stress.

After turning around, David found a quiet corner and sat down.

He regretted it now.

He really should not have come so early.

He had no interest in the crazy activities here.

Beanie’s face was also red from watching.

However, she was wearing a mask, so one could not tell from the outside.

“Mr. Rivers, you should go and have fun! You don’t have to accompany me. I’ll rest here and wait for the trade fair to start,” David said.

“Well... Master David, since you don’t like it, you should take a rest here. The fair should be starting soon. I’ll go and look elsewhere,” Thor replied.

“Okay, go. You don’t have to worry about me.”

“Master David, I’ll come back to you later.”

After he saw David nodding, Thor stood up and left.

He saw it too.

David genuinely did not like these things, so he could only rest and wait for the evening trade fair to start.

On his way, he met a beautiful waitress with drinks in her hand. Thor then reached out to take a glass and touched the woman’s body with the other hand to take advantage of her, causing the other party to squeal in embarrassment.

David and Beanie who were not far away saw all of this happen.

Beanie mumbled unhappily before looking away.

Fortunately, the little girl Pebbles had eaten a lot of treasures and had fallen asleep in the passage.

Otherwise, David might have just left.

This was such a bad influence on children.
