

THE VIRGIN'S REVENGE

Chapter 7 The Montenegro family

Stuart spent the entire night with Bethany due to the frequent night mares she'd have, and the next morning he decided to call up Larissa her best friend.

She was the last hope they had for her to regain back her old self.

Outside a big mansion was a family enjoying a lofty breakfast in the garden as huge as a middle sized park, the aroma from the food was breathtakingly sweet and the breeze from the lake added to the serenity of the place.

"Leon my son i must say you made me proud once again my boy it was a swift one," said a man in his early 60's but looked more like a 40 year old.

With well combed grey hair, jade black eyes and smoke stained teeth.

"Yeah bro i mean the senator was becoming a pain in the neck we lost alot thanks to that scumbag."

"Well we need to do everything possible to maintain the power i mean we are the Montenegro's cheers to that," Leon spoke with so much pride.

"So does that mean that the senate will lift the ban on the south nile sea port."

"Yes Roshan," replied Raphael.

"Well then i supppse we need to meet up and inform our contacts abroad so that business can resume," said Liam.

"I'll handle that," the old man said.

"Good morning to you all," came a voice full of indifference interrupting their conversation.

"Oh Kyle you look all dressed up for the morning why don't you join us for breakfast or should i call it a mini celebration regarding the senator."

"I'm sorry i've got a long line of patients waiting for me and all of you know i dont have any interest in your business nor will i ever excuse me,"he grabbed the apple from the table and got into his aston villa and drove off.

"How arrogant, you know if it wasn't for his looks i would've doubted if he was a Montenegro."

"Let him be Raphael i'm positive he will pick up one day."

"Dad's right and besides we shouldn't let his indifference spoil our beautiful morning," Leon said raising his coffee for a toast.

The five ate breakfast in a happy mood and Leon decided to have a word with his dad once the meal was done.

So he asked Carol where he would find him as he wasn't in his usual study area.

Carol was like a mother to the boy's ever since their mother's death she knew all their weaknesses and strengths.

"Mr.Montenegro is in his study room next to the mini aquarium," she replied.

Leon thanked her and headed towards the room.

"Come on in," Hank replied to the knock on the door.

"Yes Leon can i help you with anything ?"he asked.

"Dad it's not that i don't trust in your decisions but why didn't you let me finish off the senator i mean he is more of a liability than an asset."

"Leon my son the senator isn't a liability like you think he is quite, the contrary we still need him."

"What do you mean?".
