Chapter 109 The Enemy

Camila's eyes were fixed on Isaac's hand, which was wrapped around the girl's waist

Her expression darkened

It felt as though someone had stabbed her heart with a knife

"Were you looking for me?" he asked in a seemingly nonchalant way

Secretly, he was watching her every move. He didn't even dare to blink, lest he miss the slightest change in her expression

Pretending to be calm, Camila put on an impeccable smile and said, "No, I was just passing by. Anyway, there's something I have to do, so I'm gonna go now. Bye!" After saying that, Camila immediately turned around and trotted back to the car. As soon as she closed the door behind her, she urged the driver, "Get me out of here now!"

She wanted to leave this place as soon as possible

Soon, the car roared to life and she was taken away. Camila didn't dare to look back for fear of seeing Isaac holding another woman

At this moment, she just wanted to slap herself on the face

She couldn't believe she had actually wanted to confess her love to that bastard. 5

"He is my enemy!" she muttered to herself under her breath, sneering in disdain. "I must be out of my goddamned mind. How could I like the man who killed my child?"

"Ma'am?" The driver looked at her from the rearview mirror warily

He heard her talking to herself and couldn't help but find it strange

"I'm fine," Camila said with a forced smile, repressing her emotions

"Do you want me to take you back to the villa?" the driver asked

"No, no," she said, shaking her head. "Take me to the hospital."

A few minutes later, the car pulled to a stop in front of the hospital

After thanking the driver, she got out of the car and went straight to Marvin's ward. She was just about to knock on the door when she overheard Trudy's voice from inside

"Son, your father is seriously ill. He'll die soon. You must learn to please him. Oh, and keep your guard up against Camila. She might try to take your father's property for herself. Your father's money belongs to you —you're his only son after all."

Aldrin didn't seem to agree. "Mom, Dad's still alive. How could you talk about him as though he's already dead?"

"I'm doing this for your own good!" Trudy retorted

She knew that Marvin still cared about Camila

So she had to do what she could to prevent Camila from getting a share of Marvin's property

"Aldrin, don't be silly. Anyway, stay on your father's good side. Don't get into any trouble, got it? And don't let your father see Camila, in case she ruins our plan. What if he decides to give the property to her? What'll happen to us? Your father and I aren't married; you're an illegitimate child. We have to look out for each other and keep Camila out."

"I'm his only son. He wouldn't leave me with nothing."

"Rowena left over six months ago, yet he still doesn't want to divorce her

I think that deep down, he still has feelings for her. He doesn't care about us at all!" Trudy couldn't help but raise her voice. She was furious at the thought of this

Despite having been separated from his wife for half a year, Marvin was still unwilling to divorce Rowena

Obviously, he had never planned to marry Trudy

If that was the case, then who was she to him?!

Camila overheard their conversation by accident

It turned out the Haynes family still had some property left

But she didn't know the exact amount

Marvin was still alive, yet Trudy was already plotting against him

Camila didn't want to have anything to do with Trudy, so she turned around to leave. Marvin happened to be on his way back to his ward and saw her. "Mila?"

At the sound of his voice, she turned around in surprise

"Did you come to see me?" A smile tugged at the corners of his lips, and his eyes lit up happily

She had always been cold to him, so now that she had come to see him voluntarily, he was ecstatic

"Yes." Camila nodded. "How are you feeling?"

"Great!" he said enthusiastically, pulling her back towards the door to his
