

Chapter 178

Luna was immune to his frivolous attitude, so she simply sent him on his way. "You can go back now."

Andrius returned to Team Five's office.

"Boss, do you know about the Wolf King?" Fatty Frank ran over to him when he came back. His eyes gleamed.

"Mm-hmm." Andrius nodded.

"The Wolf King is freaking awesome!" Fatty Frank looked impressed. "If I can meet him in person, I would clean his shoes and I'd still be happy!"

"The Wolf King is amazing! I heard that he showed up frightened the Hendersons and the young ones to the core. They all collapsed on the ground," Angel said with infatuation as she put her hands together. "If I can meet him, I would bear his babies."

"Hmph! There are a ton of women who want to bear the Wolf King's babies. Get in line!"

"Yeah! Stop dreaming!"

The other scoffed at her.

Andrius simply laughed it off. He then said, "If you guys have the time to think about this, why don't you guys think about how to help the company secure the idle resources left behind by the Hendersons and the Hanshus? Think of a way to help the company to reach the top.

"Until then, your status and value will surge as well."

The group was dispirited when they heard Andrius.

"Even with the Hendersons and Hanshus gone, there's still the Timberlands."

"They might be working with us, but they won't just stand back and let us chew on such a big piece of meat," Fatty Frank shook his head, expressing his denial on the matter.

Angel

added, "Even if the Timberlands are willing to give us the chance, our competitor, Castlerock Corporation, won't let us go that easy as well. Solomon Stormbrew won't hand over the pie with both hands."

Solomon of Castlerock Corporation.

He would be next on the list.

Andrius smiled and said, "Don't worry, Castlerock Corporation's days are numbered as well.

2/2

"Boss..." Fatty Frank looked at Andrius and asked, "Did you get some kind of secret news or something similar?"

He thought of how mysterious Andrius worked and the miracles he caused, hence the question.

"Just do your work properly." Andrius rolled his eyes at Fatty Frank. "Don't waste your energy thinking about nonsense."

"Oh..."

Meanwhile at Castlerock Corporation, when Solomon learned that the Wolf King had dealt with the Hendersons and Hanshus, he was terrified,

The Hanshus were one of the big three families in Sumeria while the Hendersons were the richest family in Sumeria.

Why would the Wolf King deal with them right when they were going after the Crestfalls?

Could the Wolf King be related to the Crestfalls?

The thought shocked Solomon.

He had been targeting Luna, the Crestfalls, and New Moon Corporation way longer than the Hendersons and Hanshus, and if the Wolf King knew about it, he would not make it out alive.

Solomon drowned in fear, but he was a man who had seen and experienced many things. He was able to calm himself down.

It had been some time since the inauguration ceremony, and the Wolf King still has not come to him.

Maybe it was purely coincidence that the Henderson and the Hanshus were dealt with. Solomon could not be sure.

Some thoughts later, he bit the bullet and dialed a number on his phone.

The call got through.

"Sir..."

Solomon stood by the window with his head lowered, his voice sounding revered and scared. "The mission failed. I need your support."

"You can't even complete your mission? You useless trash!" A frosty voice came from the other end of the call.

Solomon's neck shrank. He looked timid as a little girl and dared not say a word. "I am in Sumeria. Get your ass here, right now!"