

An Understated Dominance by Marina Vittori Chapter 734 -

Chapter 734

“What?” Everyone was shocked to see the old man jump up, and their jaws dropped in disbelief.

None of them expected the paralyzed old man to stand up so suddenly. They also couldn't believe that it had only taken Dustin a single needle to cure the man's paralysis.

“I-Is this real? Did that old man just stand up?”

“What the hell is going on? Did he really cure that old man with a single needle?”

“Holy shit! That's amazing!”

After a silent pause, an uproar broke out. All the scornful looks Dustin had received earlier had turned to shock.

“I-Impossible!”

“How can a patient like that stand up so soon?” Preston shook his head, not believing what he was. He refused to accept that Dustin could cure a patient in three minutes when he needed a month.

“How can this be? How did he do that?” Miranda was stunned.

As someone who claimed to be a genius in the medical field and was better than her peers, her confidence had been destroyed by Dustin. For a condition that she struggled to treat, he could quickly treat it while she hadn't been able to.

“Who the hell is he? How is he so good?” The invigilator was dumbfounded.

Although he had also looked down on Dustin earlier, he was now completely amazed by the other man's skills. After all, people would start to worship Dustin if they found out that he was great at alchemy and medicine.

"H-he's a genius!"

"Stoneray Order will be strong again if we can convince him to join us!" The elders of the group were excited. They had yet to have someone as talented as Dustin join them in the past decade.

"He's so skilled despite his young age. He must be a monster." Linden looked at Dustin with amazement.

What Dustin did earlier might have seemed simple, but it was much more than that.

For others, it may look like he only once inserted the needle into the old man's pressure point. But Dustin had already inserted and removed it repeatedly. However, his movements had been too fast for everyone.

Even Linden had to admit he didn't have the skills to do that. In other words, Dustin was far more skilled than he was in this field, yet Dustin was only in his twenties! What a monster!

"Thank you so much!" the old man cried happily. He immediately got to his knees and thanked Dustin for helping him to stand again after eight years.

"Don't mention it Dustin helped the old man up "You became paralyzed after a stroke, but now that the blockage in your bloodstream has been removed, you should be fine again Just make sure to rest well after this"

To be honest, Dustin's plan only succeeded thanks to the Tigarius Preston had administered. Without it, the old man wouldn't have recovered so quickly.

"Who the hell are you?" Preston demanded. He couldn't accept that a nobody like Dustin was better than him.

“That’s not important. What’s important is that it’s time for you to kneel and call me ‘daddy’.” Dustin smiled.