

Chapter 98 Not Many People Can Make Waylen Angry!

Looking at Cecilia's beautiful, innocent face, Rena couldn't bring herself to hate her at all.

But she knew that the reason why she was particularly tolerant of Cecilia was mostly because she liked Waylen.

This thought made Rena feel ashamed.

She couldn't help stealing glances at Waylen.

Waylen was a little angry when he saw her gaze.

Did she want to get along with Harold so much? Did she want him around so badly that she was willing to let him into their house?

Waylen looked at Harold.

As a man, Harold quickly sensed Waylen's displeasure. Harold smiled and pretended to ask Waylen politely, "It won't be an inconvenience on your part, will it?"

Waylen scoffed.

He gently wrapped his arm around Rena's waist and replied, "No, of course not."

Rena didn't expect that Waylen would agree. When they were finally alone together, she couldn't help asking him, "Are you sure it's okay for Cecilia and Harold to come over?"

Waylen stared at her for a while.

"I thought it would make you happy if Harold went to our place. Didn't you have a good conversation with him earlier?"

Rena thought that Waylen misunderstood her interaction with Harold.

But she didn't bother to explain.

Waylen was already clear about her past with Harold. If Waylen still felt uncomfortable every time she and Harold spoke, then so be it since there was really nothing she could do about the situation.

But she was still a bit aggrieved, and once again, her eyes turned a little red.

Lyndon happened to witness this scene. He came over with a smile and said, "What's wrong? Are you two having a lovers' quarrel? Waylen, you're the man, and Rena is the apple of her parents' eyes. Every girl should be cherished. How could you make her feel wronged now that she's with you?"

He patted Waylen gently on the shoulder and added, "Restrain yourself."

Waylen was respectful to Lyndon, so he nodded in response.

Lyndon had guests to entertain, so he excused himself and left. Before walking away, he said to Rena meaningfully, "Not many people can make Waylen angry, dear."

Rena didn't believe that was something to be proud of.

So she just forced a smile.

Lyndon appreciated her pride.

He had a good impression of Rena, so he gave her two VIP tickets to his concert and said, "Come see the concert if you have time."

Rena was flattered. She took the tickets and thanked Lyndon. Her displeasure just now suddenly vanished into thin air.

Even when Waylen and Rena were ready to go home, she still had that smile on her face.

With his hands on the steering wheel, Waylen turned his head to look at Rena's happy face. He asked in a hoarse voice, "Why are you so happy?"

Rena showed him the two concert tickets Lyndon gave her.

"Mr. Coleman gave them to you?" Waylen was surprised. Lyndon didn't really like socializing with people, but today, he seemed to be very fond of Rena.

He not only spoke for her; he also gave her concert tickets.

Knowing that Waylen was still unhappy because of Harold, Rena tried to please him. While they waited for the traffic light to turn green, she rested her chin on his shoulder and cooed, "Will you come to the concert with me?"

Waylen turned his head and looked deeply into Rena's eyes.

"Are you asking me out on a concert date?"

Seeing that his attitude had softened, she gently held his arm and answered, "With whom else will I be happy to see the concert?"

Her voice was soft and charming.

Waylen's Adam's apple bobbed.

He was full of regret. At this moment, he really didn't want to be unhappy just because of Harold. He just wanted to take Rena home and make love to her.

The traffic light turned green.

Waylen put on a romantic song and started driving.

He held Rena's hand and squeezed it gently from time to time.

Rena was relieved that Waylen wasn't unhappy anymore. She leaned against the leather seat and looked at his handsome profile. She couldn't help blushing.

After all, she was young and still believed in love. Waylen just showed her his jealous side, and he was willing to give in to her. Because of this, she couldn't help thinking that this was his special treatment of her, and maybe one day, he would ask her to marry him.
