

Impulsive Vow to an Enigmatic Husband ( Cornelia

Chapter 1289

Lately, Cornelia has been dabbling in comic creation on the side, with the rest of her time dedicated to scripting The Hitched Chronicles.

Cornelia was a hardcore perfectionist when it comes to her work – if something didn't read smoothly or she was not completely satisfied, she wouldn't rest until it was fixed.

Back in the day while making comics, her constant revisions would often result in long breaks in updates, earning her some flak from her readers.

At first, the criticism would get her down, thinking no one understood her struggle. But after a while, she got used to it and even earned a rep in the community as someone seasoned. No matter who threw shade, she wouldn't let it get to her – as long as she was doing her thing, she was good.

Her smooth collaboration with Foriver Entertainment was thanks to their chill attitude they never put pressure on Cornelia,

The project manager from Foriver Entertainment was like, "Take your time. Write at your own pace until you're happy with it."

Of course, the ample creative time Foriver Entertainment gave Cornelia wasn't just for the sake of a good script. There was another major reason.

That being, their preferred leading lady, Hannah Dixon, was still on vacation.

Hannah was taking a six-month break, after which she was scheduled to shoot a film her agent had lined up for her, which would take about three months.

So, from the start of Hannah's vacation, it would be nine months before she could join the drama crew – assuming she agreed to the project.

With this in mind, Foriver Entertainment gave Cornelia nine months to complete the script.

The Story of Nesiona was a successful collaboration between Foriver Entertainment and Hannah, making them both a pretty penny. Naturally, both parties wanted to team up again.

When Foriver Entertainment sent out the invitation, Hannah's agent gave a quick thumbs-up.

Now, the only step left, and the most crucial one was signing the contract.

Before signing, Hannah, who was traveling abroad, called Cornelia and asked her, "Nelly, tell me straight, are you really the scriptwriter for The Hitched Chronicles? Or did they just bring you on as a figurehead?"

Laughing, Cornelia replied, "Do you really have that little faith in Foriver Entertainment? You've worked with them before, haven't you?"

Hannah retorted, "You've worked at big companies, been an executive assistant for years. How can you still be so naive? Let me tell you, trusting a businessman is like putting a juicy steak in front of a dog and expecting it not to eat it."

With that, Cornelia had to agree, "I guess I'm just too innocent.*"

No wonder she was no match for Marcus, who could spin her around with a few words – Marcus was the biggest shark in the tank, after all.

Hannah assured her, "If you're really the scriptwriter, then I can sign the contract without any worries."

Cornelia confessed, "This is my first time writing a script, and there are many things I'm unsure about. I can hardly believe it myself, so why are you so confident in me?"

Hannah said, "Because you're the author. You've painstakingly created this work, so of course, you'd want the TV adaptation to be the best it can be."

"Hannah, you know me better than anyone else," Cornelia said.

Hannah confirmed, "Of course, we're BFFs after all."

Cornelia asked, "When are you planning on coming back to Riverton?"

Hannah replied, "I was planning on returning at the end of the year and going straight back to my hometown for Christmas. But now I've changed my mind. I want to come back a month earlier to keep you company."

Overjoyed, Cornelia said, "That's fantastic. You can give me some advice to help make the script even better."

Hannah agreed, "Of course, that's not a problem. But Nelly, I have to warn you. It's not unheard of for the production team to change the scriptwriter after the shooting starts, or for investors to replace you with a ghostwriter. You always have to be on your guard."

You can't let your guard down just because someone's nice to you, and you certainly can't hand over your hard work to someone else just like that.

In our industry, things can get complicated. You have to be cautious. If there's anything you don't understand, don't hesitate to ask me."

Chapter 1290

Cornelia replied, "Okay."

Hannah added, "Normally, you could take your time to write. No rush. If you're having a hard time, take a walk."

Cornelia asked, "We've not been apart that long. When did you become such a nag?"

Hannah answered, "It's because I care about you. If it were someone else, I wouldn't bother."

Cornelia laughed and said, "Got it. Well, I need to get back to work. We'll chat later."

"Hold on, there's something important I need to tell you."

Cornelia asked, "What is it?"

“Recently, there’s this guy who has been pursuing me.”

“Who? Do I know him?” asked Cornelia.

“Of course you do. It’s the actor Jared.”

Cornelia was surprised and asked, “Jared? The one who’s known as the youngest actor and can charm anyone from 18 to 80?”

Hannah replied, “Yeah. Do you think I should accept his advances?”

“Do you like him?”

“I wouldn’t say I like him, but I don’t hate him either. We’ve worked together on three movies, and he was the lead actor in the TV series I just finished.”

Cornelia said, “Hannah, have you considered that he might be bringing his on-screen feelings into reality? Could he be seeing you as your character?”

“That is a possibility.” Hannah replied.

Cornelia, “Can you give me the full story?”

Hannah explained, “In the series, we were lovers, but in reality, we aren’t close. Coincidentally, the day after I arrived in Paris, I ran into him on the streets. He was surprised to see me there, so he excitedly asked me out for drinks.

Since I was alone and we were former colleagues, I accepted his invitation.

However, I didn’t expect him to look at me with such affection after a few drinks, then tell me he liked me and ask if I’d be his girlfriend.

Nelly, you have no idea how much that sobered me up.

But he didn’t do anything to me. He just asked me to consider it overnight.

I thought he was drunk, and it was all just drunken words that he’d forget the next day.

But to my surprise, he invited me to lunch the next day and asked what I thought.”

Cornelia asked, "How did you respond?"

Hannah answered, "I said I needed more time to think."

Cornelia said, "Hannah if you don't like him, don't force yourself to accept him, and definitely don't agree for ulterior motives. You might end up miserable."

Hannah, "But he's the dream guy of many girls. Many women want him but can't have him. Now that he's actively pursuing me, I feel flattered and don't want to reject him."

Cornelia suddenly grew serious as she said, "Hannah since you brought this up, tell me the truth. Don't feed me any crap."

Hannah paused for a moment, then said, "Actually, I just want to know if I'm capable of loving someone else after leaving Steven Dixon.

I also want Steven to know that I, Hannah, am not just a troubleshooter for others. There are people who truly like me."
