Chapter 761

The Padilla family lived in Marina Cove in Riverton. Marina Cove was a residential area set up by the Riverton government for displaced residents, where each family enjoyed the comfort of a private villa.

Among these relocated folks, some raked in annual dividends of millions. Their daily lives were filled with city-hopping, overseas vacations, and by the end of the year, their dough still hadn't run out, and it was already time to cash in on dividends again.

That was why Marina Cove was jokingly referred to as "the richest village without jobs."

The Padilla family also hung their hats here. Their crib was right at the entrance of the village. A mere 300 meters to the right after entering the village, and bam, there was their villa.

Ayden rang the doorbell, and the one to answer was Roman.

As soon as the door opened, his fist swung towards Roman like a sandbag, with such speed that Roman couldn't even see who the person was before getting two teeth knocked out.

Next thing he knew, he was lifted off his feet by two muscular arms and dropped hard on the ground. Every bone in his body aching, he stammered in panic, "Who the hell are you? You know who you just punched?"

Ayden brushed him off and respectfully guided Cornelia forward, "Ma'am, I've given the guy you wanted to hit a good whack. Happy with the results? If not, I can break a couple of his legs for you."

Cornelia took a step forward, looking down at Roman who was struggling in pain on the ground, and said, 'Roman, consider this a wake-up call. If you dare cross me again, not only will I make life a living hell for the entire Padilla family, but I'll also have you booted out of Riverton. Forever.'

Roman, despite his pain, put on a brave face, “Kick the Padilla family out of Rivoton? Ha...Cornelia, just because you’ve got Marcus in your pocket, you think you can do whatever you want?”

As he spoke, he spat out a mouthful of blood before continuing, “Cornelia, don’t get ahead of yourself. It’s a long road ahead. You better pray Marcus stays interested in you, or else...”

Cornelia cut him off with a laugh, “My husband and I are doing just fine, thank you very much. We don’t need you worrying about us.”

Roman suddenly chuckled, “You came looking for me because you think I’m the one posting stuff about you online? Let me tell you, those pictures of you on the internet, I had nothing to do with them. Ha...you’ll never know who did.”

Cornelia retorted, “The next one on my list is Clair.”

Roman was taken aback, “How do you know?”

How did this woman know everything? She didn’t seem that bright. Was Marcus handling everything for her?

Cornelia simply said, “How do I know? I know more than you can imagine. Better not be up to no good behind my back, or else your family will pay the price.”

The commotion outside caught the attention of those inside. Sabrina was the first to rush out. Seeing two strangers in her yard, she then spotted her son Roman writhing in agony on the ground.

She was livid, charging at Cornelia like a lunatic, “Who the hell are you, barging into my home and attacking my son?”

“You don’t even know me, yet you and your son went to the Hartley family spreading lies about me.” Faced with the raging Sabrina, Cornelia stood her ground, her gaze sharp and resolute.

Chapter 762

Sabrina, tall and quick, decided to take Comelia down. However, Ayden stood in front of Cornelia, blocking Sabrina's way to her.

Ayden did nothing but stand in front of Comelia. As Sabrina rushed towards them, she collided with him, hitting her nose and causing tears to flow from the pain.

Holding her nose, she cursed loudly, "You're that woman named Cornelia. You've bewitched my son."

"Your son is lusting after other people's wives every day. It's your son who has no shame! How can you blame others for tempting your son!" Cornelia had no desire to argue with such a person, "Ayden, let's go!"

"You hit someone and now you want to leave? Where do you think this is? You can just come and go as you please?" Sabrina went to the door, pressed the alarm, and shouted, "Someone broke into my house and hit me. Everyone come here, get these two and take them to the police."

The rest of the Padilla family were not at home, and the sound attracted a passing neighbor, who came to the door and asked, "Sabrina, what happened?"

Sabrina said, "Two bad guys broke into our house, and hit Roman. You go inform the villagers, don't let them get away."

The neighbor said, "The Hartley Group sent a truck of cash, distributing money to the villagers, and everyone's gone to get the money. No one has time for your drama."

It turned out it was Marcus meddling, Sabrina was furious.

Sabrina asked, "So no one's gonna deal with this?"

Suddenly, she felt upset for the money! Marcus was squandering money again!

She'd rather be thrown in jail for a few days, or be beaten, than watching those bills flow into other people's pockets.

The village chief rode over on his motorcycle, "Sabrina, Roman's hurt, he should go to the hospital immediately. You don't need to worry about the rest."

Sabrina got the hint, "So you mean it doesn't matter that Roman was hit, and we can't punish the person who did it?"

The village chief leaned in and whispered, "You know who you've offended, don't you? Do you think you can mess with Marcus? Many people in our village depend on the Hartley Group to live, and no one wants to upset him just for helping your. Just hearing about his methods is enough to scare the villagers, who would dare to stand up against him?"

Sabrina exclaimed in frustration, "We didn't offend Marcus. The person who hit now is not Marcus, but this woman!"

The village chief had no patience for such a stubborn person, "Don't play dumb. If you're willing to listen to me, I'll arrange for someone to take Roman to the hospital now; if not, you figure it out."

After saying this seriously, the village chief turned to Cornelia, his attitude changing significantly: "Cornelia, I'll arrange for someone to take you two out of this village immediately."

Chapter 763

Comelia didn't beat around the bush and said, "Thanks, sir!"

Marina Cove in Riverton was a peculiar place where many things were beyond the reach of the law, far more frightening than what met the eye.

Thinking back, Cornelia realized how reckless she'd been. Thinking she was safe with her bodyguard Ayden by her side, she overlooked just how sketchy the village really was.

If it weren't for Marcus stepping in just in time, her and Ayden making it out of the village safe and sound was a long shot.

In the village, the village chief had someone get the car ready to take Roman to the hospital. But Sabrina stood her ground, not letting anyone touch her son. "You've wrecked our reputation in Maritia Cove today," she said.

The village chief gave Sabrina a cold stare. "I ruined the reputation? Or did you? Your family doesn't have what it takes, and you want to take Marcus' girl? Before you make a move, maybe your son should gauge his own worth?"

Sabrina was lost for words, "Who... who's trying to take his girl? It's him who stole Roman's girl, That girl was meant for Roman. She even agreed to be his girlfriend..."

"So what? He saw her first? So what?" the village chief retorted mercilessly. "The guy's Marcus from the Hartley Group, not some average Joe. Any girl with the right mind would choose Marcus over your good-for-nothing son."

"What did you just say? You're calling my son good-for-nothing?" Sabrina could tolerate a lot, but not someone calling her son a loser. "My son was an exchange student at the University of Riverton. He's got brilliant academic record. Many people want him, and after he returned home, he was the chief programmer at a big tech company..."

"So what? Do you know what school Marcus went to? Do you know how quickly he finished his degree that takes normal people three to four years? Compared to Marcus, your son is worthless." The village chief didn't hold back, hitting Sabrina where it hurt.

Sabrina turned pale, opening and closing her mouth, but no words came out.

Cornelia's car was parked at the entrance of the village. After their escort dropped them off and wished them safe travels with a grin, Cornelia had a hunch t hat he was up to no good. She suspected someone might have tampered with their car and asked Ayden to check it.

Ayden was one step ahead, pulling out a detector and giving the car a once-over.

After that, he checked the car's braking system and other parts. Once he was sure everything was okay, he told Cornelia, "Ma'am, please get in the car."

Cornelia got in the car, and Ayden drove off towards the Reese family mansion.

Cornelia had cooled down by then, "Ayden, we're not going to the mansion anymore."

Ayden was always a yes-man, always did as he was told. He never asked questions or said more than necessary. But at that moment, he asked, "Are you scared?"

Cornelia asked him, "Aren't you? Did you think about what would happen to us if President Hartley wasn't prepared?"

Ayden replied, "I'm not scared, and you don't need to be either. With President Hartley around, dealing with the Padilla family and the Reese family is as easy as squashing an ant."

Cornelia shook her head, "I'm not scared!"

She just didn't want to cause more trouble for Marcus.

She impulsively decided to take action with Ayden, and while it did feel good, she had not considered how much clean-up work Marcus would have to do for her.

Chapter 764

He was the one running the massive Hartley Group, constantly swamped with endless tasks even during his downtime. He was already up to his ears in work, and she didn't want to pile on more troubles for him, hoping he wouldn't have to squeeze out more time and energy to help her out of his already hectic schedule.

Cornelia said so, and Ayden didn't push further, "Heading back to the hospital now?"

Cornelia nodded.

After a while on the road, Cornelia spoke again, "Ayden, could you do me a favor?"

Ayden, "Sure."

Cornelia went on, "I'm sure those photos from this afternoon were sent by Clair, but I have no idea where she got them from. Could you help me find out who's aiding her from behind the scenes?"

Ayden, "Sure thing."

Cornelia, worried that Ayden might hit a brick wall with no leads, gave him a hint, "About that incident, it stirred quite a fuss in Rosenberg back in the day. Folks from Rosenberg should all know about it.

"However, Riverton is thousands of miles away from Rosenberg. At most, the incident was only spread around our school, the majority in Riverton should be clueless. The ones who'd keep photos and newspapers from that time, I bet, should be from Rosenberg."

Ayden, "Don't worry, I'll find that person."

Ayden was Marcus' most capable assistant, and he was highly skilled, making him an outstanding bodyguard. For him, finding someone was not a difficult task.

Cornelia, "Don't let President Hartley know about this."

“Sure.” Ayden didn’t ask why, but Cornelia volunteered the information anyway, “His health isn’t great, and he’s swamped with work. I don’t want my problems to add to his load.”

Ayden worked for Marcus, and Cornelia thought he might spill the beans to Marcus the minute she told him not to. The only way to keep Ayden silent was to let him know just how run-down Marcus was, to make him feel for Marcus so he wouldn’t blab everything to him.

Back at the hospital, Granny Rebecca was still in the emergency room.

She was old, and the longer the rescue took, the more dangerous it got. Everyone understood this, they all wore worried looks when they saw Cornelia return.

Zack was the first to approach, giving her a big hug, “Cornelia, Granny will be fine, don’t you worry.”

Cornelia was more anxious than anyone, but she kept her cool on the outside, “Granny will be fine. Just yesterday I told her our new house will be ready in a couple of months and asked her to get ready to move in with me.”

Hearing this, Zack’s heart ached. Cornelia had been planning to move into the new house with Granny and had decorated Granny’s room beautifully. If Granny passed away before moving into the new house Cornelia prepared, it’d be a huge blow to her.

He thought Cornelia must be torn inside, definitely not as calm as she appeared, “Don’t hold back, if you want to cry, let it all out. We’re all family and friends here, no one will laugh at you.”

Cornelia retorted, “Who said I’m gonna cry? I believe Granny will be okay, why should I cry?”

Marcus came over and held her hand. Instead of mentioning Granny, he tried to distract her, “How’s your thing going?”

Chapter 765

Marcus' deep and strong voice reached Comelia's ears, like a potent dose of tranquilizer, instantly calming her restless heart.

She unconsciously moved closer to him, as if hoping to draw strength from him. "You knew I was going to stir up trouble, why didn't you stop me?"

Comelia's question caught him off guard, but Marcus understood her meaning. "Why would I stop you? Whatever you want to do, as long as you're up for it, go for it without a second thought."

As long as her safety wasn't at risk, he would support whatever she wanted to do; no matter what kind of mess she made, he would clean up for her.

Cornelia asked, "How much did you fork over to the people of Marina Cove to smooth over the punching incident?"

Marcus replied, "I merely gave out the mid-year bonuses early."

Cornelia, "Really?"

Marcus, "Yep."

Cornelia, "Do you know how much it hurt me when I heard you distributed a ton of money to the villagers?"

Marcus smirked and patted her head, "I'm a businessman, not a fool."

Who said he wasn't a fool?

When she got into a brawl, he didn't stop her but secretly sent someone to clean up her mess. If that was not what a fool would do, then what was? And he had the nerve to say he was not one.

Cornelia nestled into his chest, nuzzling him slightly, "In the future, when I act impulsively, you have to stop me."

Marcus hugged her closer, gently patting her back, "Sure."

Seeing Briana sweating bullets, Cornelia immediately took out a tissue from her bag to wipe her sweat, “You ran too hard. Look at you, all worn out.”

Briana, “I’m worried about Granny Rebecca. Cornelia, she will be okay, right?”

Comelia, “Yep, she’ll be fine.”

Zack looked at Briana, “Briana? Briana? Are you Marcus’ sister?”

Hearing her name, Briana immediately turned around, “Zack? Zack, what are you doing here?”

Comelia, “When did you two meet?”

Briana, “We bonded over comics, we’ve been online buddies for two or three years. Recently, when I returned to Riverton, he mentioned that he was also in Riverton, so we met up and had a great chat.”

Zack was taken aback, “How could you be Marcus’ sister?”

Briana, “What’s wrong with me being Marcus’ sister? Does being Marcus’ sister mean I can’t be friends with you?”

Zack scratched his head and gave a bewildered smile, “No, I didn’t mean it like that. I’m just saying you’re really cute and sincere. Aside from both of you being easy on the eyes, you and Marcus don’t seem to have anything in common. Even though your names overlap, I never thought you might be Marcus’ sister, or related to the Hartley family.”

Briana laughed, “Better late than never, right? By the way, what brings you here?”

Zack excitedly replied, “Comelia and I go way back. We grew up together.”

Briana responded, "Gotcha"

Zack scratched the back of his head, "You mentioned before that you wanted a signed copy of Nelly Be lly. I've got it ready for you. When you're free, we can meet up and I'll give it to you."

"Alright. We'll make plans when I'm free. I have to go see my granny now." Briana bid Zack a polite goodbye before heading towards Granny Luisa.

"Sure thing." Zack watched as Briana walked away, his eyes practically glued to her.

Cornelia didn't miss any of his subtle gestures. The three of them had grown up together and knew each other inside out. Sometimes, they even had similar thoughts.

Taking Zack aside, Cornelia bluntly asked, "Zack, are you falling for Briana or what?"

"Keep it down," Zack covered Cornelia's mouth, glancing behind her, "We've only met twice and you're already saying I like her?"

Cornelia rebuffed, "It doesn't matter what I say. What matters is, do you have a crush on Briana?"

Zack shook his head before nodding, "Who wouldn't like a pretty, gentle, and well-mannered girl? But she's Briana, Marcus' sister, the heiress of the Hartley Group. I'm miles away from her league."

That was indeed a yawning chasm.

Cornelia felt that if she had known about Marcus' true identity, she would never have married him. Considering Zack's concern, she thought it was reasonable.

She also knew that while Zack's eyes lit up at the sight of Briana, Briana didn't seem particularly excited when she saw him. To Briana, Zack was just an online friend, nothing more.

Cornelia patted Zack's back, "Zack, you'll meet a girl who likes you and you like her too."

Zack gave a bitter smile, "There are billions of people in the world, but finding someone you like who also likes you back isn't easy"

Cornelia, "Zack..."

"Let me tell you," Zack interrupted, "since you've chosen to be with Marcus, and spend the rest of your life with him. I won't badmouth him in front of you again."

Cornelia questioned, "Did something happen when I was away?"

"He made countless calls, bringing in all the experts, saying he'd spare no expense to cure granny. He's probably more anxious than you. He's really planning to spend his life with you. You should cherish him."

"I understand," Cornelia replied.

Looking up at the ceiling, Zack finally said, "You and Marcus are worlds apart, but he treats you well. I think you'll be happy. Status isn't an insurmountable barrier, don't you think?"

Cornelia knew what Zack really meant was, "If two people love each other and have the same goals, the difference in status might not be an unbridgeable gap."

Zack lamented, "Am I just useless? Girls always see me as just a friend, and they never want to be my girlfriend."

Cornelia wouldn't let Zack wallow in self-pity and started recounting his past, "Ever since kindergarten, there have been girls who liked you. They'd give you candy every day, but you never seemed to appreciate it. Even in college, didn't beautiful girls confess their feelings to you? They outright told you they wanted to marry you and take care of you, so you wouldn't have to work."

Zack chuckled at the memories, "Time flies. It's almost three years since we graduated from college,"

Chapter 767

Cornelia sighed, "Time flies, huh? In the blink of an eye, we've grown up and granny's hair is all gray."

Zack said, "This Christmas, when I went home, I noticed my parents have a lot of gray hair too. They're only in their forties. In my memory, they're still very young. I don't get it. I've only been away for a year and they seem to have aged so much."

Cornelia said, "When we move to our new place, you can invite your parents over for a while. If you're not busy, you can also go back to Rosenberg to spend some time with them. Life is short, we shouldn't neglect our families."

Zack looked at Cornelia's despondent expression, "What are you talking about? Marcus has found many renowned doctors. Granny will be fine."

It was exactly because Marcus had found so many doctors that Cornelia was more worried. If Granny's condition wasn't serious, Marcus wouldn't need to find so many doctors.

She understood but didn't say it, "When I was a kid, time seemed to crawl. I wanted it to go faster. But when we grow up, time flies, no matter how hard we try to hold on to it. Sometimes, I wish I could go back a few years, so I wouldn't stay away from home because of people's weird looks, causing me to never go back to Rosenberg to spend Christmas with Granny during my college years.

"Now, I wish every day that time could slow down, or even go back a few years, so I could spend more time with Granny."

As she spoke, tears slid down Cornelia's cheeks. She quickly looked up to hold them back, "This AC is too strong, it's making my eyes watery."

Zack quickly handed her a tissue, "You don't have to put up a brave face in front of me. If you want to cry, just let it out."

Cornelia didn't want to cry, but tears uncontrollably rolled down her cheeks, "Zack, I'm scared. I'm scared I won't have the chance to be with Granny, scared that the room I prepared for her will never be used..."

Zack said, "That won't happen. Granny loves you too much to leave you."

Cornelia, "My dad loved me too, but he still left me."

Zack, "Cornelia, the past is the past. You shouldn't dwell on it."

Cornelia didn't want to bring up the past at this time, "Zack, do you know how much I hate that guy? He pursued me, then he broke up with me. I never chased after him, nor caused him any trouble. Now, I just want to work and live my own life, but he keeps bothering me. He knows I'm married, but he went to see Granny Luisa... Today, letting Ayden knock out two of his teeth and break two of his ribs is still too lenient on him.."

Zack asked, "Did you really knock out his teeth?"

Cornelia answered, "Is there a problem?"

Zack gave her a thumbs up, "No problem, no problem at all. You have Marcus backing you up now. Even if you knocked out his teeth, he can only suck it up."

Cornelia angrily said, "You're right, I have support now. Why should I put up with it? I should take advantage of this..."

Before Cornelia could finish, Marcus came over and said to Zack, "Mr. Ruck, may I talk to Cornelia alone."

He obviously wanted Zack to leave.

But Zack played dumb, "Go ahead, I'd like to hear it too."

Marcus replied, "I just want to talk to Cornelia."

Zack asked, "What can't I hear between you two?"

Straight talk often left no room for argument, and he had to make his exit first.

After Zack left, Marcus took Comelia to a side lounge, fetched her a glass of water and said, "Have a sip first, I gotta talk to you."

Comelia took the water, took a sip, and asked, "What's up?"

Marcus' deep voice came out from his thin lips, "I'm sorry!"

Comelia asked, "Why are you apologizing?"

Marcus said, "Do you know the real reason your granny passed out this time?"

Cornelia didn't know, but his words gave her a bad feeling. She became so nervous that she almost dropped the paper cup in her hand, "Granny will be fine. Don't scare me..."

Marcus reassured her, "Granny will be fine, but what I want to tell you is something else." He paused for a moment, then continued, "Cornelia, the person I arranged to be by Granny's side messed up. That guy poisoned her food, causing her chronic poisoning. Today, she fell into a coma because of the shock, and the toxins rapidly took effect."

Hearing this, Cornelia felt incredulous, but after some thought, she caught on.

Marcus had many enemies, and there were a lot who wanted to kill him. Since they couldn't make a move on him directly, they chose to hit those close to him, so Granny became their easiest target.

*She asked,
"What kind of poison was it? What kind of damage can this poison do to her body?"*

All she cared about was the type of poison and its impact on Granny's health, but she didn't ask who had administered the poison.

Marcus couldn't help but wonder if she had guessed who had poisoned Granny. "Don't you want to know who poisoned her?"

Who poisoned her didn't matter. Because whoever it was, they must've been caught by Marcus. But Cornelia still played along with his question, "Who was it?"

Marcus said, "I've found out who poisoned her. He's just a pawn following others' orders, and there's someone else pulling the strings."

Cornelia asked, "Who's the puppet master?"

After a few seconds of silence, Marcus finally spat out the name he loathed, "Brennen!"

Upon hearing this name, Cornelia was shocked, and she looked at him with moist eyes.

Marcus thought she was scared, thought she was blaming him, and quickly reassured her, "Cornelia, I'll replace all the people around Granny with those I trust the most. Don't worry. I won't let this happen again."

Cornelia didn't say anything, and suddenly hugged his waist, "You don't have to apologize. It's not your fault, it's not about you!"

Cornelia's words were like a warm current flowing into Marcus' heart, healing his pain and warming his cold heart.

He knew that once Brennen got out of jail, he would definitely seek revenge. He was already prepared to face Brennen's retaliation and was waiting for it. Ho

"You said honesty is the most important thing in a marriage. Today, I'll be honest with you. Granny is my closest family, I deeply care about her health. You're my husband, and I care about you too, I worry about you... The less I know, the more worried I become. If I know what the other side might do, if I know how you might fight back, perhaps it would put my mind at ease, wouldn't it?"

"He's not capable of much, just good at being sneaky and targeting people around me. This time it was Granny, next time it could be - you..." Marcus paused, looking at her, "Are you scared?"

Cornelia

didn't know much about Brennen, but she knew anyone capable of harming an innocent elderly person wasn't a good person.

There were all sorts of bad guys. Some showed their evil openly, making it easy to guard against them. Others, like Brennen, pretended to be good while secretly scheming. If you were not careful, you would fall into their trap.

If Cornelia said she wasn't scared at all, that would be a lie. She admitted, "I am a bit scared."

Marcus wasn't surprised by her answer. He smiled and gently tousled her hair, "Don't be scared. As long as I'm here, I won't let you get hurt."

"What do you mean 'as long as you're here'? Do you plan on dying? You promised me you would stay alive and accompany me till we're old. You must keep your word or else I'll never talk to you again, even in the next life."

Comelia said again, "Sure, I'm a bit scared, but I know I've got you, Zack, Abby, Bri and the two grannies by my side. I know there's a bunch of people who care about me and who I care about. I'm not scared anymore. Whatever tricks he's got up his sleeve, he can bring it on. I won't say I'm scared anymore."

Marcus, who had been in a foul mood all night, couldn't help but laugh at her words, "Not scared now?"

Comelia put her hands on her hips and said confidently, "Well, I mean, I'm still kinda scared, but we can't lose in terms of spirit. Sometimes, just having strong confidence is already half the battle."

Take Marcus for example, he had a really strong presence. Whenever anyone negotiated or did anything with him, just a slight raise of his eyebrows can freak them out. How can they get a good result if they've already lost their confidence?

Marcus said, "Cornelia..."

Comelia said, "Hmm?"

He said, "Thank you."

For not blaming him. For standing by his side!

Comelia said, "I should be thanking you too!"

Marcus asked, "What for?"

Cornelia said, "When my granny was seriously ill, I moved her from Rosenberg to Riverton. If you hadn't arranged for people to take care of everything for my granny. I wouldn't have been able to focus on my work. You arranged for people to take such good care of my granny that I had nothing to worry about at work."

Marcus said, "That's something I should do as your husband."

"Anyway, I just want to say thank you. Once she gets better, I'll treat you to dinner, how does that sound?" To Comelia, helping someone else was never an obligation. If someone helped you, it was their kindness. If they didn't, that was also perfectly fine.

Marcus had no obligation to help her take care of her granny, but as soon as her granny arrived in Riverton, he mobilized manpower and resources to arrange care for her granny and made her life comfortable. He said that helping her was the right thing to do, but she also knew to be grateful.

Just as Marcus was about to say something, there was a knock on the lounge door, and the doctor's voice came from outside, "President Hartley, the patient has been resuscitated, and she is temporarily out of danger."

This good news relieved everyone present, especially Cornelia. She had been able to hold back her tears, pretending nothing had happened. When she heard that her granny was okay, her nerves relaxed and her tears flowed uncontrollably.

Cornelia wanted to go see her granny, but she stumbled, unable to stand steady, luckily Marcus was at her side and caught her in time.

Her eyes were red from excitement, and she repeatedly bowed to the doctors, saying, "Thank you, all of you! Thanks for saving my granny!"

The doctor said, "Mrs. Hartley, no need for formalities, it's our duty. But you can't see Granny Rebecca yet, she needs to be observed in the ICU overnight. Tonight is critical, if she can get through tonight safely, she'll truly be okay."

Due to being overly excited and nervous, Cornelia didn't even notice the doctor had addressed her as "Mrs. Hartley."
