Bogus Billionaire by Shining Riviera (Caroline Evans) Chapter 71

Chapter 71

"I asked him about it, but he still hasn't agreed," Caroline explained.

Gwen asked, "Is he afraid Mr. Morrison Senior will notice something?"

"What is he supposed to notice?" Caroline asked. She thought that Gwen was overthinking things. She said, "Even if he's the son of a wealthy family, the Ev ans family would have noticed."

Gwen stroked her chin. "You have a poi

"Eddy's second unde decided this himself. You stuboonly wouldn't let Caroline off the hook at my birthday banquet. So Eddy's second uncle came up with a compromise. Yet you're bringing it up again today to cause Carbine trouble.

"It seems that I misjudged your change in attitude a few days ago. Ws. Colire. You stil don't know your m ares.

Brie's face tumed pale as she tried to explain, saying "Mr. Morison Senior, - t's not what you think. I was just afraid that Eddy's second uncle had been dec eived, so I was desperate to ask Caroline for an explanation.

Jude smiled. He countered. "Let me ask you this in rear. What right do you have to worry about these things?

Brie blinked and answered. "My right as his fiancés, of course."

Rumors about Brie and Kirk's marriage had been spreading in social circles for a long time. Now that the parties had validated these rumors, everyone could n't help pricking their ears, wanting to hear the more exciting news.

Standing beside Jude, Caroline's expression shifted slowly, and she stared at the old man in disbelief.

Jude chuckled. "Since when were you his fiancée?" He wasn't aware that som ething like this had happened.

Brie explained, 'Didn't you agree to my request at your birthday t. At any rate, Mr. Morrison Senior wants to see him, so you should take Kirk t o see him. Let that old man observe him for a bit."

"Forget it... Caroline lowered her head. "Eddy is looking everywhere for Kirk right now. Taking Kirk to see Mr. Morrison Senior is just asking for trouble."

"That's a simple problem. Since Mr. Morrison Senior likes you so much, just te II him not to tell Eddy about your visit. Besides Gwen pushed, "Don't you want to get that old man's approval?"

Gwen knew Caroline well. She managed to convince her best friend with just a few words. Seeing that Caroline was silent, Gwen dragged her out of the bathroom. She called out to Kirk, who was standing by the bed, "Kirk!"

Kirk frowned, looking at Caroline, who was looking down with a flushed face.

Gwen pushed her best friend in front of Kirk and patted her on the shoulder. S he said, "Go ahead and talk. I'll be waiting outside." After that, she left Caroline and Kirk alone in the hospital room.

"What do you want to talk about?" Kirk asked. He saw Caroline's exposed coll arbone and coughed unnaturally, looking away.

"The same thing as last time. I'd like you to meet Grandpa," Caroline babbled, finishing her sentence in one breath. Her beautiful eyes stared at Kirk nervously.

Kirk's eyes narrowed slightly. "Didn't I agree already?"

"You did? When?"

"When I asked you if you wanted me to go."

Caroline blinked her eyes, and her lips parted slightly. She couldn't believe what he said. She asked, "So, you'll agree to the visit because I asked you to?" It was the same as when he'd bought her that house because she liked it.

Kirk nodded.

Caroline's eyes turned red. She said, "But Eddy is looking everywhere for you. If we visit Grandpa, we may be walking into a trap..."

Kirk patted Caroline's head with a smile. "It's okay. Even if he finds me, he can't do anything to me." However, Caroline still had mixed feelings.

"It's getting late," Kirk said, looking at the clock on the wall. "You should rest soon. I'm going home."

"Kir- Caroline chased him to the balcony, but he'd already slid down the pipe on the wall nimbly and disappeared into the darkness.

When Gwen returned to the room, she noticed it was empty and asked in confusion, "Where's Kirk?"

Caroline looked at the ground below her.

Gwen asked in fright, "D-did he jump? He's overreacting. You're just taking him to see Mr. Morrison Senior. It's not like that old man will eat him ali ve."

Caroline looked at her friend impatiently and said, "What on earth are you talking about? He just slid down along the pipes on the wall."

Gwen patted her chest in relief. "Oh, that scared me. But he's really intense. D id he come up here by climbing along the pipes too?" Caroline nodded.

Gwen's eyes widened in surprise. She gave her a thumbs up. "He's really strong!"

Kirk trouble, but she was also worried that Jude would be unhappy with Kirk.

For the past few days, she didn't even have the energy to work on the designs for the competition.

That day, the doctor did Caroline's final checkup. There weren't any problems, so she could be discharged from the hospital. "Ms. Evans." The doctor held C aroline's medical records. He asked, "Will your husband be here to pick you up from the hospital?"

Caroline looked at the doctor, puzzled. "No. Why are you asking?" She hadn't notified anyone that she would be discharged today.

The doctor smiled disappointedly. "Nothing."

After watching the doctor leave dejectedly, she continued to pack her things.

Suddenly, the door was pushed open with a bang. Caroline turned around and saw Brie charging into the room. Her lackeys followed in b ehind her. "What a lively bunch," Caroline thought.

"I finally found you, Caroline! You really know how to hide from someone!"

Caroline looked at them coldly.

Sensing that something was about to happen, the patient, nurses, and doctors crowded the door of Caroline's roo m, watching the drama.

Brie had been waiting for this moment. Seeing that everyone was there, she walked up to Caroline triumphantly.

She yelled, "You're really shameless to steal other people's things and hide h ere afterward. Even if you and Eddy broke off the engagement, you're still a member of the Evans family. You should be ashamed for doing such a thing!"

The hospital was abuzz with discussion.

There wasn't a single change in Caroline's expression. She asked, "Are you pulling a trick out of boredom again, Ms. Collins?"

Brie's expression shifted. "I can't believe you're still being stubborn, Caroline. Let me ask you, is the ceramic vase you gave Mr. Morrison Senior really yours?"

"Why does it matter?"

Brie smirked. "Because the vase isn't even yours. It belongs to Eddy's second uncle! You paed off his gift as your own because he didn't attend the birthd ay banquet! Shame on you!"

The spectators outside the door included many people from wealthy social circles. News about Caroline's gift had already spread like wildfire among them. Their expre ssions shifted after hearing that it was a scam.

"I knew it. There's no way a small family like the Evans family can get a ceramic vase."

"So, she stole Eddy's second uncle's gift?"

'His second uncle? I heard that he's very powerful. If he finds out about this, things definitely won't end well for Caroline ..."

Remaining silent, Caroline narrowed her eyes, looking coldly at Brie.

Brie had found out that the ceramic vase belonged to Eddy's second uncle and barged into the hospital to make a big scene so that she could publicly embarra Caroline.

Brie didn't care if Caroline was disgraced, but she couldn't let Kirk's reputation be ruined.

Caroline smirked and laughed. "The fact that he's willing to give the vase to Grandpa in my name means that he's f ond of me. Are you upset because you're jealous?"

Caroline's words struck a nerve, making Brie angry. Brie yelled, "What a joke! Why would I be jealous of you? Besides, you can't prove that his second uncle gave it to you voluntarily."

The lackeys that Brie had brought along began mocking Caroline.

"She's just flattering herself. She has the guts to boast like this because she k new Eddy's second uncle wouldn't attend the birthday banquet."

Jude explained reasonably. "Eddy's second uncle is married, so your engage ment with him is null and void. To make up for it, I asked the butler to let you i nto the main banquet hall.'

Brie was stunned. She thought, "How could it be? How could Eddy's second uncle be married?"

The people who'd come here to watch the drama enjoyed Brie's misfortune. The tables had tumed, and Brie had become a laughingstock.

Looking at the distraught Brie. Jude sighed and said, 'Carrie, let me take While waiting for the elevator, Caroline couldn't help asking, "Is Eddy's second uncle really married?

Jude nodded. "That's right. Now, it seems that his decision for a fast marriage is the right one."

"A fast marriage? Eddy's second uncle had one of those as well? Caroline tho ught.

"By the way, did your husband agree to meet me?" Jude asked.

The topic shifted to Kirk, pulling Caroline from her thoughts. She nodded befor e she could think about it.

you've walked out on may be the best things you've had."

Caroline rubbed her head. She couldn't really understand what he meant. Still, she agreed obediently. "Okay"

Jude looked at Caroline meaningfully. No matter what, he hoped that she could be a part of his family.

In an apartment in Urban Haven, Sean was leaning against the bar, looking at the injury on Kirk's forehead with great merest Ater pondering for a moment, he took advantage of Kirk's closed eyes, picked up a bottle, and chucked it at his friend.

Kirk raised his hand, grabbing the bottle.

Sean raised his eyebrows. "I knew it. You've always had fast reflexes. Did Ms. Evans caus e the wound on your forehead?

Kirk unscrewed the bottle cap, ignoring Sean's question.

Sean was used to his temper, and he continued asking, "Are you really going to meet Mr. Morrison Senior as CariNE'S NUSIZNI?

Kirk hummed in agreement.

Sean said, "I'm afraid that he won't agree to your marriage. I've heard he dote s on Caroline very much and treats her as his grandcalgne- in— law. If he finds out that you're her husband, he'll be pissed."

Kirk maaged his temples with his slender fingers. He said, "Since he's proposed to meet, I have to do so."

"I'm just afraid that ..." Sean hesitated.

Although Ivan and Jude were brothers, it was rumored that Ivan had left the country because there was bad blood between frem.. Moreover, the two fa milies had only been in frequent contact in recent years, and their relationship wasn't as close as June's reatorsno with an outsider like Caroline.

If Kirk upset Jude, Sean was worried that he would face more opposition for his business in Easton.

Of course, Kirk knew that, but since Caroline wanted him to go, he would do s o.

At this moment, the phone rang. Kirk glanced at his phone and answered the call.

"Where are you, Uncle Kirk?"

Kirk didn't answer but asked in return, "What's the matter?"

"Grandpa wants us to see him. He said that he has something important to discuss."

"Okay." After hanging up the phone, Kirk got up and said, "I'll be leaving now."

Sean looked at his retreating figure and shrugged helplessly. He hoped that J ude would accept Kirk's identity when the time amved.

Simon immediately asked the hotel to bring a coffee brewing kit and mugs, Ca roline took the opportunity to text Kirk. "My Grandpa is here. How long do you need to get here?"

Kirk didn't reply.

The staff had brought the tools, so Caroline had no choice but to concentrate on brewing coffee for Jude . Skill and knowledge were required to make coffee. She couldn't be careless,

The staff brought them Robusta Coffee beans. Caroline ground the coffee beans with the grinder and bolled some water. Then, she poured the ground coffee beans into a filter. Finally, she slowly poured the hot water through the filter into a mug, filling the room with the fragrant scent of coffee.

A cup of dark coffee was ready, emitting an aromatic, smoky scent.

"Here you go. Grandpa."

Jude picked up the coffee. He took a sip and smiled with satisfaction. "Your coffee is as delicious as always, Carri e."

Caroline said modestly, "I'm sure you're just being nice, Grandpa."

Jude waved his hand. "I'm not. I know you, Carrie. You strive to do your best a t everything. Take this cup of coffee, for example. A professional may not mak e coffee as good as yours."

"Grandpa

Jude sighed. "It's a pity Eddy won't get to try it."

Caroline lowered her head and remained silent.

Jude smiled and didn't say anything more. He turned his attention to the emerald bracelet on Caroline's wrist. He asked, "Did your husband give you this bracelet?"

Jude had noticed it when Caroline had been making coffee.

Caroline smiled slightly. She said with a hint of pride, "Yes." She'd worn the emerald bracelet on purpose. She hoped to prove to Jude how good Kirk was to her and help Jude make a good impression.

Jude looked at the bracelet. He didn't say anything but took a sip of his coffee.

Everything was silent for a while. Caroline couldn't guess what Jude was thinking. She thought he was annoyed at Kirk for being late. She made an excuse to leave the private room and calle d Kirk.

As soon as Caroline left, Simon couldn't help but speak up: "Sir be here too.

Kirk frowned, not remembering where he'd seen Brie before.

After a brief moment of astonishment, Howard said to Jude, overjoyed, "I cam e all the way here to see you. Since Mr. Kirk is here too, I don't need to make another trip to see him."

didn't like the Collins family, but he still spoke politely. "Is there anything we can do for you?"

Howard started, "Jude, the Morrisons are one of the big four familles, but our family isn't small either. Brie has become a laughingstock because of Mr. Kirk. Shouldn't you give us an explanation about this?"

Caroline walked briskly to Kirk's side and stretched out her hand, asking. 'Where are the documents?

The elevator stopped on the third floor, and Kirk walked towards the private room. He'd never been this nervous before. He laughed at himself.

Discussing billion-dollar deals with other people was easler than this. He wondered what was wrong with h im. He walked to the private room and knocked on the door.

Simon opened the door. When he saw Kirk standing outside, he was stunned. It wasn't until Jude asked him who was at the door that he snapped out of his stupor and made way for Kirk.

"Uncle Jude," Kirk said, walking into the private room.

Just like Simon, Jude was surprised to see him here. "What are you doing here? Didn't you say that you were busy?"

Kirk said, with a complicated expression. "You're right. I was busy."

"So, why are you here?"

Kirk straightened his clothes, revealing his wrist. He said, "Because I have something to tell you,"

"Did you find information about Caroline's husband?" Jude sald excitedly, Kirk was about to say something when there was a commotion outside the door.

"Jude and I are old friends. Hurry up and let me In! Let go of me! I want to see Jude!"

Jude frowned, asking sternly. "What happened?"

Simon had already arrived at the door. "Sir, it's Howard and his daughter, Brie."

Jude walked to the door with his walking cane. When he saw the father and daughter be ing stopped by security guards, he frowned instantly. "Let them go."

When the guards heard his order, they immediately released Howard and Brie. The two trotted to Jude Immediately. Before they could compose themselves, they were frighten ed by Kirk, who was standing behind Jude. Their faces turned pale.

"Mr. Kirk..." Brie frantically straightened her hair. She asked, "W—what are you doing here?"

When Brie had seen Caroline, she'd thought that the latter was just having dinner with J ude. She didn't expect Kirk to be here too.

Kirk frowned, not remembering where he'd seen Brie before.

After a brief moment of astonishment, Howard said to Jude, overjoyed, "I came all the w ay here to see you. Since Mr. Kirk is here too, I don't need to make another trip to see hi m."

Chapter 78

Brie had just suffered a lot at Kirk's hands. Seeing Caroline here, she could finally have someone as her punching bag.

She wasted no time grabbing Caroline's arm and lashing out at her, "You're here to seduce Eddy's second uncle, right?"

Caroline glanced sideways to look at her arm, which was stinging from Brie's grasp. "Let go!" she spat.

Brie didn't listen. It was as though she'd gone mad with rage. If she couldn't g et what she wanted, why could Caroline?

Seeing that Brie wasn't going to let go anytime soon, Caroline grabbed her by the wrist, her fingernails sinking deeply into her flesh.

Brie yelped in pain and let go of Caroline to look at the marks on her wrist. She rushed at Caroline, ready to tear her apart.

Caroline dodged her easily and looked up at the surveillance camera not far a way from them. "Ms.

Collins, please behave," she warned.

Howard realized that this wasn't their territory, and if Brie continued on with th at crazed look of hers, she would humiliate their family even more. Hastily, he rushed forth to stop Brie.

"Brie," Howard called out to her. "It's not worth it to lower your status just to de al with someone like her. Let's go."

Brie was unwilling to leave. "But dad, why does she get to have a meal together with Eddy's second uncle?"

Caroline was already in the elevator when she heard this. Her brows knitted to gether at Brie's words. Eddy's second uncle was here too?

The door of the elevator closed slowly, blocking her sight of those two members of the Collins family. At least her mood improved now that they were out of her sight. She also felt a little excited to know that Eddy's second uncle was here too.

It wasn't long before Caroline reached the third floor. Her footsteps were light when she strode into the private room.

Grandpa She pushed the door open and entered the room, only to find that no one was in there Stunned, she hastily took out her phone and called Kirk Just as she turned back to the doct, she saw him walking out of the elevator Ending the call, she rushed over to him and tugged at his shirt "Did something happen?" She asked, concerned.

"What could happen? Kirk raised an eyebrow

"Did Grandpa do anything to you?"

"No"

"Where's Grandpa then?"

"The Morrisons called just now They said something was up back at their place, so he had to leave I followed him downstairs to see him off"

Caroline let out a sigh of relief Out of the blue, she realized that she was stand ing especially close to him. It was as though she were a concerned wife who was bombarding her husband withi

questions

Embarraed, she quickly let go of him. "What did Grandpa say now that he's seen you?"

"Nothing" Kirk told her. "He barely got the chance to say anything before they called ham, and he

"Did you meet Eddy's second uncle then?"

Kirk furrowed his brows, sensing something was off "How did you know he was here?"

"I saw Brie

The realization dawned on him right away. He changed the topic by asking. "D id you make the coffee on the table?"

"Yep"

"Make another one for me, will you?" He'd never tried Caroline's coffee before

"Sure!" Caroline answered, and they both entered the room together "De you like coffee

Somehow, Caroline thought that there was something else behind his words, and the top of hat ears burned. She lowered her head, trying to get free of his grasp in vain.

Cadline turned to look at him. "What?

"Didn't you promise Grandpa that you'd take care of me?" Eddy stared at her with anxious eyes

Don't tell me you're breaking your promise

Caroline didn't feel like entertaining him. She simply walked out of the room to ask the bodyguards where the kitchen was

One of them led her straight to the kitchen, which was full of a variety of veget ables, poultry, and meat Everything had been rinsed and cleaned beforehand. All Caroline had to do was cook.

Before this, she'd been in charge of all three of Eddy's meals every day. Naturally, she knew his preferences. Now, though, she didn't want to cook based on that anymore. She'd be cooking whatever she wanted!

After half an hour, the bodyguard brought two dishes into Eddy's room. Both of them were steamed asparagus Eddy's face contorted in disgust at the sight of them. "Wh at else did you cook?

"Nothing Picking up her plate of asparagus, Caroline sat at the table and started eating the food slowly

She hadn't had lunch and had lost her appetite, so she'd resorted to cooking this plain and simple

dish

Eddy was so pissed that he wanted to throw the cutlery onto the ground. "You' re asking me to eat this even though I'm sick?" In the past, Caroline would nev er do something like this to him!

"Don't eat it if you don't want to," she replied, not even raising her head to look at him.

Eddy was totally dumbstruck.

At Kirk's

apartment, Sean was perched on the edge of his seat. He tried his best to kee p a serious look on his face, but his efforts were all in vain. It didn't even last for a second before he started laughing out I oud.

"You actually told her that you two are partners in bed-

"He continued laughing his head off, which made Kirk's already gloomy face darken dangerously.

He didn't understand what was so funny about it. Based on their deal, he and Caroline shouldn't fall for each other So, what was wrong with calling themsel ves "partners in bed"? Wasn't it just

The perfect term to describe their relationship?

After all, physical touch was way better than a piece of contract paper.

As Kuk's best friend, Sean clearly understood what was on his mind. After so me time, he finally managed to suppress his laughter. He cleared his throat and said, "It seems to me that I have to teach you some tricks to pursue your girl."

"I'm hot pursuing her "

"Okay!" Sean rose from his seat. "Sorry for bothering you. Goodbye."

He reached the door and was about to leave when Kirk closed his eyes and s aid in exasperation,

Come back here"

It wasn't every day that Sean got to see this side of Kirk. Gleeful, he turned to look at Kirk and said, "Coaxing her is actually pretty simple." He took a few ste ps in Kirk's direction. "When did you get married? You didn't give her a ring, right?"

"That's not even worth anything-"

Kirk started but was curtly interrupted by Sean, who yelled, "Stop!"

Sean gestured and told him, "Keep this in mind. To a woman, it doesn't matter if it's priceless or not as long as you're romantic. Gold is worth something, but she'll find it vulgar if you give her a pound of it

"A diamond ring is a different matter altogether. A single diamond ring is sufficient to melt the heart of any woman. She'll forget all about getting mad at you by then."

Kirk's fingers tapped lightly on the surface of the table. In the next instant, he pulled out his phone and called Charles. "Send me the latest diamond ring designs from all the major jewelry stores

Sean smiled in satisfaction as he patted Kirk on the shoulder. Confidently, he said, "As long as you follow my ad vice, I promise you that she'll come back to you in less than a month."

Kirk then turned sideways to glance at Sean's hand that rested on his shoulde r. The latter instantly felt a sense of foreboding and pulled his hand away imm ediately.
