

Chapter 102 An Unspectacular Girl

---

If there were other women accompanying Tyrone today, Elton wouldn't be concerned. However, it was Sabrina, and that made him uneasy. ☹

Sabrina wasn't like other girls. She was ordinary, with her family and background not boasting the luxurious lineage of the nobility. However, she held a significant place in Cesar's heart.

Tyrone was raised by Cesar and had a strong bond with him.

Therefore, if Cesar wished to play matchmaker, Tyrone might not decline. ☹

It made Sabrina the greatest potential adversary to Galilea.

The assistant questioned, "Should we keep an eye on them?"

Elton responded, "No. Tyrone is a free man and today he chose to be without social obligations. We must respect his personal affairs. Let's not meddle."

He didn't dare to tail Tyrone.

The assistant simply acknowledged, "Understood, sir."

When Elton returned home, a servant handed him a glass of water. "Sir, your brother has been awaiting your arrival in the study for the past two hours."

It made Sabrina the greatest potential adversary to Galilea.

The assistant questioned, "Should we keep an eye on them?"

The assistant simply acknowledged, "Understood, sir."

When Elton returned home, a servant handed him a glass of water. "Sir, your brother has been awaiting your arrival in the study for the past two hours."

Elton's brother, Osiris Clifford, was Galilea's father. ②
At the mention of the name, Elton's eyebrows knit together as he ascended the stairs.

Elton paused in front of the study door. After a moment of hesitation, he hesitated and then pushed the door open.

"Elton, you've returned," Osiris greeted with a hint of indifference as Elton stepped in.

Taking a seat, Elton inquired, "Yes. What brings you here?"

"You're so engrossed in work that you tend to forget things. I'm here concerning the collaborative project with Blakely Group. Marcus Tucker, their representative, has strongly indicated that our bid is poised to succeed."

Marcus believed this information could strengthen his relationship with Osiris.

Even though Osiris wasn't a virtuous man, he had a remarkable daughter. She was in a relationship with Tyrone and would likely become Mrs. Blakely.

Osiris would become Tyrone's future father-in-law. Marcus desired to establish a positive rapport with him beforehand.

Elton's expression turned grim. "Did you engage him directly?"

"Why not? Aren't I a stakeholder too? Why can't I contact him?" Osiris raised his eyebrows. "Have you forgotten that our parents entrusted us to run the company together after their passing?"

Elton was left speechless, rendered quiet by the painful truth.

How could he ever forget?

Over the years, he had managed the company almost single-handedly while Osiris enjoyed the dividends without lifting a finger.

Osiris's sudden proposal to involve himself in company matters was unsettling to Elton.

Osiris said, "Even though I haven't been directly involved, the company's success in obtaining projects from Blakely Group has been majorly due to Galilea. You are well aware of this. Without her, our company would still be a small factory."

Elton felt a sting of betrayal. "Osiris, your words cut deep. The shareholders and I have toiled for this company's success. Your statement undermines our efforts."

In his youth, Osiris was a playboy who cared little about the company.

During the company's most trying times after their parents' demise, Osiris provided no assistance. Elton was left to save the company on his own.

Fortunately, their parents were aware of Osiris' limited business acumen. Consequently, they allocated the majority of their shares to Elton, while Osiris only held a small portion.

Although their partnership with Blakely Group was largely attributed to Galilea, their solid footing in Mathias' elite society was due to Elton's relentless efforts in building connections and stabilizing the business.

Even if their affiliation with Blakely Group was severed and things took a turn for the worse, they could still endure.

Osiris, however, attributed all success to his daughter, Galilea.

Osiris was left wanting for more shares. He had attempted to discuss this with Elton, but his feigned confusion left Osiris feeling slighted and led him to meddle in company matters.

"I didn't mean that. All I'm trying to express is Galilea's significant contributions to our company. You wouldn't treat your niece unjustly, would you? Despite her efforts, she's without a single share. Does that sound fair to you?"

Elton was aware that Osiris was trying to get some shares.

Rather than engaging in a quarrel with him, Elton simply responded, "You bring up Galilea, I'm curious about her relationship with Tyrone. How is that going?"

"It couldn't be better! Just recently, he threw a grand birthday bash for her. Weren't you there?" Osiris retorted with a hint of pride.

Despite his own shortcomings, he had a remarkable daughter. Everyone respected him so much.

"Are you certain?"

"Why would I have any reason to deceive you?" Osiris shot him a look of contempt. "Galilea's future as Mrs. Blakely seems sealed."

"I beg to differ."

"What are you implying?" Osiris shot Elton a quick glance. "The two of them being together is good for us. Even if you're hesitant about allocating shares to her, there's no need to cast a hex on her, is there?"

"I didn't curse her. I'll have you know that today, at the club, I bumped into Tyrone, who was in the company of another woman."

Osiris looked at him suspiciously. "And who might that be?"

"Sabrina."

"Sabrina? The adopted girl of the Blakely family?"
Osiris raised an eyebrow. He had heard of her but they had never met.

"Indeed."

Osiris sneered, "Elton, you're overthinking this. Even if Tyrone is involved with Sabrina, what of it? You're bending over backwards to avoid distributing shares to Galilea, even resorting to media gossip."

Elton replied, "I'm not overthinking anything. When I saw them, Tyrone was holding her hand and acting quite familiar. I attempted to broach the subject of Galilea, but he didn't respond. I understand it may seem like I'm being paranoid, but it's always better to err on the side of caution. Especially when the woman in question is Sabrina, a beloved figure to Cesar..."

Without needing to elaborate, Osiris understood what Elton was implying.

Sabrina's status was special. If there was any truth to a romantic entanglement between her and Tyrone, it signified that Galilea would not be becoming Mrs. Blakely.

"Sabrina? I never thought that such an adopted child would prove so formidable."

Observing Osiris's reaction, Elton proceeded, "I fully recognize Galilea's contributions to our company. Rest assured, she will get her fair share. However, the immediate concern is not about her share, but her potential marriage into the Blakely family, solidifying her position as the true Mrs. Blakely. We need to prioritize the larger picture here, Osiris, or we might find ourselves in trouble."

The Clifford family had a reputation to uphold.

Rumors about Tyrone and Galilea's relationship were circling globally. If Tyrone were to marry another, it would mean public humiliation for the Clifford family.

And then, would Galilea break up with Tyrone or be his mistress?

A potential breakup between Galilea and Tyrone could indeed have repercussions on their social interactions and the company's projects. Likewise, if Galilea were to become Tyrone's mistress, it could severely damage their reputation.

Osiris wouldn't stand for such outcomes. He had worked hard to earn the respect he held.

If Tyrone were to marry someone else, it could potentially subject him to ridicule and mockery.

"I'll get in touch with Galilea and inquire about the situation."

With that, Osiris reached for his phone and dialed his daughter.

After a few rings, she picked up. "Hello, Dad? What seems to be the problem?"
