

Chapter 726 Getting Stabbed In The Back

Liam answered coldly, "My grandfather, of course. Who do you expect to be the head of the Hoffman family? I'd advise you not to waste your time. I don't think he has any interest in working with rogues like you."

The words were barely out of Liam's mouth when Rennes barged in with another group of people.

Rennes stopped a few feet away from Liam and smiled grimly. "What if I tell you that Sergio is gone?"

Liam's heart tightened and his breath hitched slightly. Sergio hadn't shown up yet, and it was unusual of him. Rennes' rhetorical question only raised his suspicions. Liam couldn't help but wonder if something had happened to his grandfather.

Blue veins protruded on Liam's forehead as he asked, "What do you mean by that?"

Rennes sneered at him, then whistled. A few seconds later, someone walked ahead with a corpse and threw it in the centre of the hall.

It was Felix, Sergio's bodyguard.

Liam's face changed dramatically. He knew just how strong Felix was. He was specially chosen to be Sergio's bodyguard because he was a top master.

If Felix was here and dead, that didn't leave much hope for Sergio.

Liam felt like a bolt had gone through him and broken him. His eyes suddenly blurred and his body turned weak.

Sergio was one of the most important people in Liam's life. He couldn't accept this.

Luckily, Julie was close enough to hold him up before he fell in his state.

Rennes, on the other hand, was very much pleased with the reaction he got out of Liam. He then looked around the whole hall and said arrogantly to Liam, "Since you're not the master of the Hoffman family, please call out the person who can make decisions around here. The Duncan family wants to come back to Invone, the capital, today. The head of the Hoffman family should step out and give an opinion on this."

Liam frowned and threatened, "For your sake, I hope you haven't laid a hand on my grandfather. Otherwise, I will wipe out the whole Duncan family."

In the face of Liam's threat, Rennes' answer was a sneer.

Then, he looked over Liam's shoulder and at the other members of the Hoffman family as if waiting for something.

As if on cue, Demetrius stood up and said calmly and seriously, "On behalf of the Hoffman family, I agree to the return of the Duncan family to Invone."

Liam slowly turned around in shock, hoping he heard wrong. In disbelief, he asked, "What did you just say? Grandpa is not here. What makes you the head of the family?"

Demetrius looked directly into his eyes and said, "My father is too old to manage the Hoffman family, and as his first child, I have the final say now."

Liam moved his gaze between Rennes and Demetrius, finally understanding what was going on. Anger surged in his heart as it all clicked.

Sergio had led the Hoffman family to fight against the Duncan family for so many years, and now, he was getting stabbed in the back by his own son.

Clenching his fists, Liam gritted his teeth and said, "I never thought you would bite the very hand that fed you. What did you do to my grandfather?"

Demetrius seemed to get angry too. "You are not in the position to tell me anything or what to do. When my father made your father the heir back then, I endured it. Then, after your father disappeared, my good old father, skipped his next generation and chose you as the heir. Is that reasonable? My father is an old coot. Since you are willing to give up your identity as the heir for your ugly woman, I'll make things easy for you. Now take her away. You shouldn't interfere in the affairs of the Hoffman family anymore."
