

Chapter 808 Asher's Educational Hurdles

With a shout, Julie rushed ahead to assist in pushing away several guards who were holding Yesenia.

Julie shielded Yesenia and asked Casper coldly, "What are you doing?"

Noticing Julie's return, Casper advanced and derided, "You should acknowledge my father's kindness in taking you in. Who knew you'd shamelessly linger here for so long? Now that your husband is back, it's time for you to leave, isn't it?"

Julie was infuriated upon hearing this. It was evident to anyone that Casper was merely venting his frustration. How could he use such a flimsy excuse?

Yesenia wanted to confront Casper, but Julie signaled her to stop, shaking her head. She didn't wish to remain in the Cortez family's household anyway. She stayed because Asher needed to go to school here.

Now that they had their fallout, there was no need to plead for mercy.

Raising her head, Julie replied coldly, "Moving out from here is a mere formality. We couldn't care less."

Casper sneered, unwilling to let it go that easily. He said in a peculiar tone, "You're too slow, and I don't want to see you around. I'll have my people assist you in moving out."

Following Casper's words, several guards forcefully threw their belongings out, deliberately exerting excessive strength to damage them.

Witnessing this, Liam swiftly moved and forcefully kicked the guards to the floor. He warned, "If you dare damage anything again, I won't hold back next time!"

Liam's kicks were potent enough to cause the guards considerable pain. Their arrogance vanished, and they looked at Casper with embarrassment.

Despite observing Liam's impressive fighting abilities, Casper seethed with anger but remained obstinate. "You're still displaying arrogance. I'm curious where you'll manage to live once you're out of here."

Julie snorted contemptuously.

In the past, she might have been troubled by this situation. But now, as the owner of the Evergreen Cemetery, she could, at worst, sell some shares and procure a small villa.

Julie replied coldly, "That's none of your concern."

Using Julie's determination as a trigger, Casper further provoked her. "Don't assume you're on my level just because luck favored you. I've warned them. Someone as destitute as you can never afford a villa in the Nightingale Villa Area. Your son will have to drop out of school!"

This enraged Julie, causing her to clench her fists and grit her teeth. "Worst case, we'll transfer him to another school. He's still way better than your son!"

Although she stated this, Julie couldn't help but feel a pang of regret.

Asher was currently attending the top private kindergarten in Salem, Hawthorn Kindergarten.

The high tuition and stringent conditions for enrollment, including owning a villa in the Nightingale Villa Area, were now seemingly unattainable under these circumstances.

Previously, Asher gained admission because of the Cortez family's villa. However, under these circumstances, it seemed improbable that he would receive the best education in the future.

Contemplating this, Julie couldn't help but feel bitter. Nevertheless, she maintained a façade of composure in front of Casper.

At this point, Liam sneered, "It's just a villa, isn't it? I doubt everyone would refuse to sell if I wanted to buy one!" Naturalise mayoralty.
