

Chapter 884 Sky-high Compensation

Upon hearing this, Doyle's countenance shifted drastically, his murmurs betraying a sudden internal turmoil. "What transpired? How on earth did Mr. Murray learn about what I did to Julie? What should I do now? If Mr. Murray terminates the contract, how can I secure my position as the family heir?"

Swiftly composing himself, Doyle began his argument, saying, "Mr. Murray, allow me to clarify. Julie is also part of the Williams family. She negotiated the collaboration with the Red Murray Group as the Williams Group's representative."

Upon hearing Doyle's words, Julie erupted in anger, her face flushed with indignation. Unable to contain herself, she lashed out, saying, "Doyle, that's bullshit! If your Williams family acknowledges my role, why did you take the contract I've signed from me? You're treating me unfairly! How dare you utter such things now!"

Doyle was caught off guard by Julie's outburst. In the following moment, he noticed Tristan's expression turning visibly grim.

Fixing his gaze on Doyle, Tristan uttered in a low voice, "The collaboration between our Red Murray Group and contract termination document. Hurry up!"

One of the bodyguards swiftly produced the document and placed it on the desk.

Seeing this, Doyle's visage contorted in an instant.

Should he sign the document, his aspirations of becoming the family heir would be shattered entirely.

Displeased beyond measure, Doyle summoned his courage and spoke, his voice trembling. "Mr. Murray, if you do this, your stance would be construed as... a breach of contract. In such circumstances, compensation is warranted. But don't worry, Mr. Murray. With the power of the Williams Group, we can honor the contract impeccably. We can even pledge to offer more profits to the Red Murray Group! Please reconsider this termination document! I implore you, Mr. Murray!"

Tristan sneered, "Doyle, do you comprehend the gravity of your words? Are you truly asking me for compensation? I've yet to hold the Williams family accountable! If you demand compensation, I'll grant it! But once the funds reach your account, I'll ban the Williams family in Salem! Do you understand?"

Upon hearing this, Doyle was thrown into a state of panic.

He knelt in fear, pleading for mercy. "Mr. Murray, I'm so sorry! I should never have done that to Julie.

Please, grant me another chance!"

With a smirk, Tristan responded, "Then, tell me, how do you propose to resolve this issue?"

As Tristan spoke, he discreetly observed Liam's reaction, aiming to gauge if his chosen punishment for the Williams family was fitting.

But Liam maintained an inscrutable expression, leaving Tristan uncertain about his thoughts or feelings.

Doyle hastily exclaimed, "Mr. Murray, I don't want the compensation anymore! Moreover, I'll offer twenty million dollars as my sincere apology! Please, forgive the Williams family."

Tristan scoffed.

Twenty million?

Being the wealthiest individual in Salem, he couldn't fathom jeopardizing a connection with Liam over just twenty million dollars.

Liam intervened, "Doyle, do you think twenty million is sufficient to appease Mr. Murray? Are you underestimating him?"

In immediate retort, Doyle snapped, "Liam! Who gave you the right to speak here, you incompetent fool? Shut up if you have nothing of value to say!"

Tristan's lips quivered upon hearing Doyle's words.

If it weren't for Liam's silence, Tristan would have slapped Doyle.

How could a person of Liam's stature be insulted by someone like Doyle?

Tristan muttered to himself, "Doyle doesn't realize whom he has provoked. I must continue applying pressure on him, at least, to help Liam teach him a lesson."

With determination, Tristan prepared to continue pressuring Doyle.

However, just as he was about to speak, Niko unexpectedly approached.

Niko intended to visit the company and discuss the collaboration between the Williams Group and the Red Murray Group with Doyle. To his astonishment, he found Tristan in the marketing department.

Approaching with a flattering demeanor, Niko said, "It's an honor to have you here, Mr. Murray! Doyle, what's the matter with you? Why haven't you offered Mr. Murray a seat?"

Doyle, wearing a bitter smile, hesitated to respond.

Niko gestured for Tristan to sit.

Unexpectedly, Tristan scoffed and kicked Niko to the floor, reprimanding him, "No need! The Williams family's seat is highly esteemed. I fear I might soil it!"
