

Chapter 954 The Wife Of The General

Soon after, a response came from his family. The middle-aged man spoke up eagerly with a loud voice.

"General Hoffman, my family has attacked the entertainment section of the Williams family! Within an hour, it'll be bankrupt!"

As the head of the Morpew Family started, others followed suit with their reports.

"As Haynes family's supermarket supplier, we have severed ties with them."

"The Carter Family's assets have been frozen!"

The room filled with these reports, one after the other. Some, seeking to catch Liam's attention, even resorted to exaggeration.

"My family has demolished the Williams family's villa!"

Upon hearing this, laughter broke out among some.

Yet, the faces of Lenny and his companions grew increasingly grim.

They all received messages from their families.

Aside from the false claim about the Williams family's villa, everything else was true.

Reading the messages, they were overcome with emotion and knelt down on the spot.

Once the guests had finished, they sought recognition for their actions.

"General Hoffman, we've carried out your orders! We just hope to gain some shares when you distribute the benefits!"

Liam remained silent, then asked for silence. He stood up with Julie under the watchful eyes of everyone at Earth Star.

"This is my wife, Julie. She's also the founder of the Pearl and its current chairperson. I announce that Kingland Group will soon merge with Pearl. This will create Salem's largest and most influential group, leading the way in our city. Additionally, I will appoint Bowen and the Murray Family to support the new conglomerate. We will draft a unified business strategy annually. And at the helm of it all will be my wife, Julie!"

Julie stood beside Liam, radiant like a fairy.

The other women in the room couldn't hide their jealousy.

They envied Julie for being Liam's chosen partner.

Julie's stunning beauty made those scheming to introduce other women to Liam reconsider their plans.

The male guests didn't think highly of Julie, yet out of respect for Liam, they held their tongues.

There Julie was, center stage with Liam, hand in hand, a mix of surprise and joy on her face.

Liam had decided to entrust the leadership of their merged enterprise to her.

Julie was anxious about handling such a responsibility. She was, after all, the wife of a general, and any misstep could tarnish Liam's reputation.

Liam, understanding her worries, held her hand and whispered encouragingly, "Julie, you will excel. I have complete faith in you!"

His words somehow filled Julie with newfound confidence, transforming her fear into the determination of a formidable woman.

With a gentle nod from Liam, Julie stepped forward confidently.

"Ladies and gentlemen, from this moment, we are allies! There's no need to fret over dividing Salem's assets. I've devised a plan. I assure you, the distribution will be just and fair. Now, I ask for your collaboration in making Salem greater than ever!"