

Chapter 956 Sky Orchid Garden

Hearing Carsen's unexpected words, Liam stood in stunned silence, feeling resigned.

Carsen's action was quick.

While Liam had anticipated Julie's intervention on Nolan's behalf, he had never imagined that Carsen, who had been shadowing him, would implore on behalf of the Murray family.

The revelation that Carsen had developed feelings for a member of the Murray family took Liam by surprise, prompting an internal urge to kick Carsen for this unexpected twist.

Meeting Liam's gaze, Carsen responded with a playful grin, saying, "Liam, I'll bring her to you right away!"

After uttering those words, Carsen swiftly pivoted on his heel and darted out of Earth Star. Within a brief span, he reappeared, escorting a charming young lady into the room.

Liam recognized the young woman; she was none other than Mariana, Tristan's only daughter.

Happily, Mariana leaned on Carsen's shoulder, a

At that moment, Carsen's countenance betrayed a complexity Liam had not seen before. His eyes were contemplative, and an air of mystery surrounded his thoughts, leaving everyone uncertain about his inner musings.

Seizing the moment, Carsen turned to Tristan with a smile and inquired, "Mr. Murray, if I may, I have a question for you. Would you consent to Mariana and I getting married?"

Tristan, like Liam, was taken aback, not anticipating the budding connection between Carsen and Mariana.

In a matter of days, discussions about marriage had swiftly entered the picture.

Tristan, already content with Carsen and relying on him for support, harbored no objections. With a smile, he nodded in agreement. "Of course, I agree!"

Seeing the undeniable connection between Carsen and Mariana, Liam sighed, mildly surprised that he had been persuaded by Carsen.

In a gesture of goodwill, Liam decided not to make things difficult for Nolan, announcing, "In that case, I will forgive Nolan. Consider it a betrothal gift for Mariana. Mr. Murray, take good care of your family. If a similar incident occurs in the future, I won't be as lenient with the offender."

Relieved and grateful for Liam's leniency, Tristan and Nolan were filled with joy and promptly expressed their heartfelt thanks to both Liam and Carsen.

In appreciation, Tristan extended his gratitude once more, saying, "General Hoffman, my company has recently completed the development of an exquisite villa. Its value is at 60 million dollars. We named it Sky Orchid Garden. I've decided to present the villa to you as a gift. I sincerely hope you won't refuse this gesture! All the furnishings are in place. Whenever you find the time, feel free to check in!"

Julie was taken aback when Tristan gifted the Sky Orchid Garden to Liam.

She contemplated refusing, particularly considering Tristan's statement about the villa's substantial value of 60 million dollars.

Nevertheless, Liam had no inclination to decline the generous offer.

Liam nodded appreciatively and replied, "Thank you."

The reason Liam accepted the gift was simple: Julie's future special status in Salem meant she couldn't reside in the Nightingale Villa Area.

Next, Liam turned his attention to Bowen and issued a command, saying, "Before concluding the meeting, as I mentioned, there will be a business discussion. You may disseminate the information now. I intend to host the first business meeting in three days! The
